WILMINGTON - Members of the Board of Selectmen honored Bernie McNally Monday night for his service to the Town of Wilmington and its residents. McNally, Wilmington Recreation Department volunteer for 12 years and unofficial "Mr. Wilmington," McNally was on hand to be recognized by the Board, and presented with a plaque commemorating his dedication to the town and its youth.

All five members of the Board expressed their gratitude to McNally for his years of service and dedication to the Wilmington's youth. From summer programs that enriched the lives of hundreds of Wilmington's youngest residents, to camps and the popular Beach Program, McNally has become an integral part of family life in town, putting in countless hours to provide safe summer fun and learning for kids of all ages. As a youth department volunteer, WILMINGTON - Though the Wilmington Board of Selectmen meeting covered the usual town business on Monday, the evening was anything but "business as usual," as the board took time to recognize the efforts and contributions of two long-time members, Louis Cimaglia and Michael Newhouse, whose term of service ends this month.

The Board first attended to the usual housekeeping, granting a common victualler's license to the new owners of the Sonic fast-food restaurant on Route 38 in a unanimous vote. The new owner-operators, RTWebb Restaurant Group, LLC, purchased the franchise location from the previous owners, Monastiero Restaurant Group, earlier this year.

The Board then revisited the issue of approving a firing range for the use of Wilmington Police Department training exercises at the proposed Abigail's Island site. After brief discussion of the additional department information and a memorandum of understanding requested at the conclusion of talks at the last Selectmen meeting, the Board moved to approve the proposed plan in

Woodbriar nursing facility Regulators impose fines

By LISA KENNEDY-COX
News Correspondent

lisa@yourtowncrier.com
WILMINGTON

Regulators at the U.S. Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services have imposed fines on the Synergy Health Centers-owned Woodbriar Nursing facility last week. The fines, currently topping $278,000 and mounting by the day, were levied in response to infractions, deficiencies, and non-compliance at the facility. Fining will continue, at the rate of $7,100 a day, until the skilled nursing center comes into compliance.

The sanctions are in large part a reaction to two deaths that have occurred at the facility in recent months.

On December 27, 2015, Woodbriar resident Mary Meuse died from injuries received Christmas morning after slipping off the pad of a chair lift and landing on her knees fracturing both lower legs. Meuse eventually died from internal bleeding.

While nursing home deaths are not uncommon, the accident raises questions about a long line of sub-par care at nursing homes in general.

A twenty-one year old nursing assistant identified in the report as Certified Nurse Aide #1, (CNA) was operating the chair lift alone. According to the report, the Manufacturers Guidelines for the use of a mechanical lift did not identify the number of staff required for transfer using the lift.

A Mechanical Lift Assessment, which was to be completed by a Physical Therapist, indicating type of lift, transfer method, sling-size, and number of people required for transfer, was not completed in accordance with the Facility's policy, titled "Mechanical Lift Transfer Program."

According to the report, the Director of Nurses (DON) said that while it was considered 'best practice' that two people operate a mechanical lift to assist with the transfer, she had not personally observed staff use the mechanical life she could not say this practice was always followed by staff.

The nursing aide, 21 year old Jocelyn McCoy is "devastated by the accident" according to her father, Wilmington Selectman Michael McCoy.

McCoy said his daughter was working on Christmas because the facility was short-staffed that day, and reported that his daughter had worked Christmas Eve, and received a call later that evening asking her to work Christmas Day as well.

McCoy said his daughter was asked to care for 10 patients that day, when a normal shift is typically eight or fewer patients. McCoy said that his daughter was asked to work the next shift until 11:00 pm Christmas, but that she was "too traumatized" and left at 3 p.m.

The report reflects a slow response to Meuse's lower leg bone fractures, which the first nurse failed to identify in an X-ray taken after her fall, which occurred at around 11:00 am.

Another nurse, who arrived on the next shift, found the fractures on the X-ray, according to the report, but passed the information on to the next night-shift nurse who also failed to inform Meuse of her X-ray results, reportedly one of five violations found by the state with Woodbriar's response.

According to a report to Woodbriar's Administrator by the Department of Public Health dated February 12, 2016, the Division of Health Care Facility Licensure and Certification completed their investigation at Woodbriar Health Center on January 12, 2016.

Meuse, who was on Coumadin, a blood-thinning medication for heart problems, was not sent to a hospital until the next day, December 26th. By then, she was bleeding internally, and passed away the following day.

According to the state investigation, three nurse's shifts had passed before X-ray results were forthcoming.

The accident fraises new concerns about the quality of care provided by the company that owns Woodbriar - Synergy Health Centers.

In a round of takeovers, Woodbriar is one of a recent acquisition by Synergy Health Centers, a nursing home consortium with facilities across the Northeast. Synergy took over the facility in March of 2015.

The Crier spoke with Synergy Health Centers at the time of the acquisition. The company claims, according to a March 2015 press release, that, "Synergy Health Centers are distinguished by their unique approach to healthcare which includes a hotel-style Concierge at each facility to provide impeccable customer service, and a groundbreaking employee recognition initiative."

Synergy further claims that they are on the "cutting-edge of technology and medicine," and aim to serve the Woodbriar community by "maintaining a nurturing, homelike environment that residents cherish."

Upon acquisition, Synergy aimed to build upon Woodbriar's tradition of care while expanding and upgrading services of the facility. "We are excited to acquire Woodbriar of Wilmington, an excellent skilled nursing facility, and it is a privilege to become part of the Wilmington, MA community," said Zisha Lipschutz, CEO of Synergy Health Centers, adding, "I am confident that the premium clinical care and expertise the Synergy team brings to each of our facilities will further raise the bar at Woodbriar and provide a superior experience for residents and caregivers alike."

Synergy bought its first Massachusetts nursing home in December 2012, and, according to a report by the Boston Globe, "reports of substandard care — festering pressure sores, medication errors, poor infection-control, inadequate training, and short-staffing — have mounted." The company now owns 11 facilities in the state, licensed to care for more than 1,200 residents.

Woodbriar, which opened in 1993, has "a very high staff retention rate," according to their website prior to the takeover. In a March, 2015 interview with the Crier, it was planned that Synergy would retain existing staff, according to Synergy spokesperson and Director of Public Relations Uri Turk.

However, Woodbriar, family-owned before Synergy prior to the March acquisition, has not had enough staff since the sale, according to two people who worked there in 2015, and who have asked to remain anonymous, according to the Globe report. According to sources, the facility has been cited for "a number of deficiencies."

The Crier spoke with David Hoey, an attorney who specializes in nursing home abuse and neglect law, and is representing Meuse's family, particularly Meuse's daughter, Brenda Murray.

"The sad thing is, there's a lot of [abuse] out there. In the 1987, Congress got involved because there was so much abuse and neglect, and they implemented OBRA, the Nursing Home Reform Act, and it had some strong teeth, that if you neglect or abuse the elderly, we're going to cut your funding."

"Now, we're getting to a point where the baby boomers are coming of age, there are many elderly people, and the model doesn't work anymore because of staffing issues, and these bad things are going to continue to happen until it's fixed."

"The day of the ma and pa nursing home is diminishing rapidly," said Hoey. "In the mid 90's and 2000's, big corporations have taken over on a volume basis. When you grow too big too quick, you lose sight of care."

"It boils down to a couple of things," said Hoey, "management, staffing and money."

"So, if you look at what happened here, first of all, it's Christmas Day, which is bad enough. They're most likely going to have a skeleton crew on, and you can't blame this poor 21 year old aide," said Hoey.

[The process] will take some time, according to Hoey. "I have to give notice to the nursing home owners and operators." According to the Healthcare Reform Statute of 2012 - Mass General Law Chapter 231 Section 60L it is required that notice to be given to nursing home operators to give them an opportunity to apologize.

Three people arrested for credit card cloning scheme while staying at Tewksbury Hotel

On April 4, 2016 at approximately 9:20 P.M., members of the Nashua Police Department's Uniform Field Operations Bureau arrested three subjects that were involved in a credit card cloning scheme at the Pheasant Lane Mall, 310 Daniel Webster Highway.

Jovon Williams, age 24, of 270 64th Oakland, California was charged with Conspiracy to Commit Illegal Use of Payment Card Scanning Device or Reencoder, Class B Felony, Criminal Liability for Conduct of Another, Theft by Deception, Class A Misdemeanor and Driving after Suspension, Violation.

The second subject arrested was Brittany Allen, age 28, of 15 Lindsey Place, East Orange, New Jersey. She was charged with Conspiracy to Commit Illegal Use of Payment Card Scanning Device or Reencoder, Class B Felony, Theft by Deception, Class A Misdemeanor, eight (8) counts of Forgery, Class B Misdemeanors.

Lastly, Queron Foreman, age 22, of 1552 67th, Oakland, California was charged with Conspiracy to Commit Illegal Use of Payment Card Scanning Device or Reencoder, Class B Felony, Theft by Deception, Class A Misdemeanor, twenty (20) counts of Forgery, Class B Misdemeanor.

On April 4, 2016 at approximately 7:31 pm, patrol officers were dispatched to the Pheasant Lane Mall, 310 Daniel Webster Highway for a report of male and female conducting suspicious credit card activity. Patrol officers then made contact with the Pheasant Lane Mall security officer who had received a call from a mall business who explained that on two different occasions, a male and a female had entered the store asking to purchase a gift card.

It was learned that the male had used two credit cards to pay for one gift card and that the female did not purchase the gift card because she could not get the exact money value she wanted on one gift card. Security officers were then able to capture the female on video surveillance and observed the female go into another mall business where she purchased another gift card. While patrol officers were on scene, the female was seen on video surveillance exiting the mall and get into the passenger side of a vehicle.

Detectives from the Criminal Investigation Division were also on scene at the Pheasant Lane Mall on an unrelated investigation at the time of this call.

Detectives and patrol officers then conducted a motor vehicle stop on the vehicle and made contact with the male driver, who was identified as Jovon Williams and the female passenger as Brittany Allen. Once the vehicle was stopped, detectives were approached by the other male involved from the mall and he was identified as Queron Foreman. Detectives then furthered the investigation on scene and developed probable cause to take all three subjects into custody.

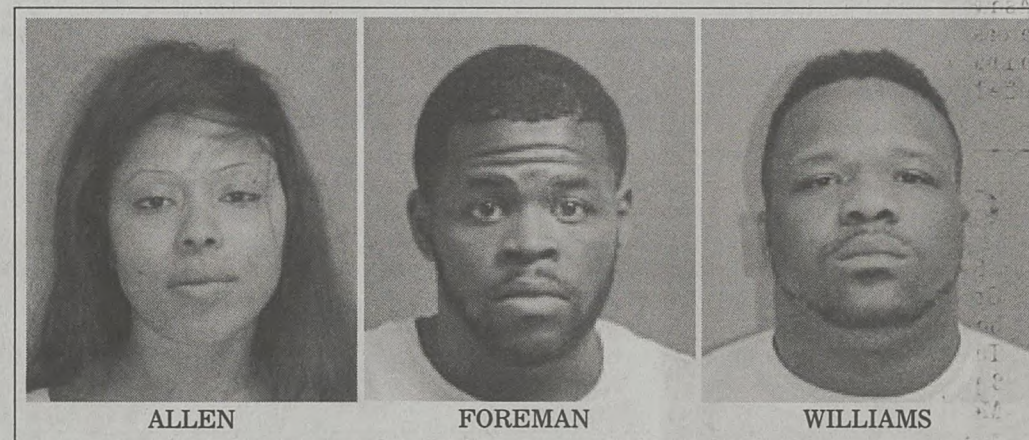

Detectives executed a search warrant on the vehicle that was driven by Williams. During the search of the vehicle, detectives located over 250 counterfeit credit/debit cards, over 20 various gift cards and various receipts originating from the State of North Carolina. Detectives from the Nashua Police Department in conjunction with detectives from the Tewksbury, MA Police Department executed a search warrant on two hotel rooms at the Residence Inn by Marriott in Tewksbury, MA where the defendants were staying.

During the search, detectives found a laptop computer, card coder/reader, a box of blank cards and a large quantity of gift cards.

A Class B Felony is punishable by up to seven years imprisonment, exclusive of fines. A Class A Misdemeanor is punishable by up to one-year imprisonment, exclusive of fines. Each Class B misdemeanor is punishable by up to $1200.00 dollar fine with no imprisonment. Foreman, Allen and Williams all appeared at arraignment on the morning of April 5, 2016 at the 9th Circuit — District Division — Nashua Court and were each held on $100,000 cash only bail.

If you have any further information in regards to this investigation, you are asked the call the Nashua Police Departments Crime Line at 603-589-1665. Please follow the Nashua Police Department on twitter @Nashuapd.

TAX BREAKS EXTENDED

Within the big tax and spending bill that kept the government running last winter, certain tax breaks were extended and/or made permanent. One that was much anticipated by small-business owners locked in a tax break for capital investments. It allows small companies to write off immediately up to $500,000 a year worth of equipment like computers, machinery and vehicles. The break phases out when a company spends more than $2 million a year on such purchases and disappears for those over $2.5 million.

Popular breaks for individuals that were made permanent:

- the tax-free payments of up to $100,000 from IRAs to charity for those 70 1/2 or older
- letting itemizers deduct state sales taxes instead of income taxes
- the deduction of up to $250 for teachers' classroom supplies—and now including professional development costs.

Ask us about the other breaks extended temporarily. We're tops on small-business taxes at:

Crafting a "Nu" Partnership

By GIUSEPPE MARRACCINO

WILMINGTON - Nancy Zimmer takes a seat on the purple couch that sits perfectly placed in the center of her crafting oasis, pondering the day when a simple trip to get art supplies gave birth to her "baby," The Crafting Closet.

"Back in January, I mentioned to my husband that Wilmington needed a crafting store. He agreed and said, 'Let's do it!'"

Since its grand opening in early March, this quaint and quirky crafting boutique located on the corner of Routes 62 and 38 in Wilmington does not look aesthetically pleasing with its brick walls on the outside.

However, one step inside and people will see a visual potpourri of vibrant colors and walls lined with yarn and fabric. Combined with Zimmer's bubbly personality, they foster the welcoming vibe she envisioned from day one.

"I always wanted to open my own store ever since I was younger," she said. "This dream meshed with my love of crafting and the rest is history."

During the grand opening, The Crafting Closet attracted "close to 100 people," according to Zimmer. Among the crowd of curious newcomers was the Woburn-based NuPath's Director of Creative Services, Sonja Halliday.

"I remember going there on the first day and it was crazy busy," she said. "I liked what I saw, and told (Nancy) I would return with some things NuPath's men and women made."

Halliday has always dreamed of expanding the Mercantile well beyond its first-floor location at 147 New Boston Street in Woburn. Hand-crafted goods line the walls and shelves of its cozy accommodations just waiting to be seen.

When Halliday heard about The Crafting Closet's grand opening, it was an opportunity she couldn't pass up. "I walked around and thought of how nice it would be to bring some of our creations here," she said.

Two weeks later, Halliday brought over an array of pillows, blankets and clothing to Zimmer and the store owner immediately fell in love.

"I'm so glad (Sonja) came back and found me," she said. "To see some of the things they can create is absolutely amazing."

Zimmer says the items created by NuPath's Mercantile have been selling like hotcakes thanks to curious customers who are intrigued by their finely crafted trinkets.

"People have been asking me who created all the beautiful pillows and blankets," she said. "I'm proud to be carrying some beautiful creations the Mercantile has made."

However, Zimmer hopes that the relationship between her store and NuPath goes far beyond the purple walls housing some of the Mercantile's material goods.

"I'd love to raise awareness for what NuPath is doing and foster friendships in the community," she said. "I had no idea (the organization) existed until Sonja strolled in and wowed my world."

She even hinted at the possibility of bringing on some of the Mercantile staff to work at The Crafter's Closet in the future. "I'm definitely open to the idea of hiring them to help me!" she exclaimed.

The Crafting Closet/NuPath partnership is a unique bond of two vibrant personalities with two common goals: community inclusion and a symbiotic connection to grow together.

Wilmington adds a new trail layer to its online GIS Map

Wilmington has over 6.7 miles of public trails throughout town. To help promote awareness of these recreational opportunities, the Town has added a new Trail layer to its Online GIS Map. The Trail layer is one of 19 layers that can be applied to an interactive map of the town.

Other layers include zoning, trash and recycling schedules, voting precincts, and more.

Areas that have been mapped with trails include Town Forest, Robert Palmer Park, trails off of Hathaway/Draper Drive, Mill Road, Blanchard Road, Leonard Lane, Lt. Buck Drive, Grace Drive, and Ashwood Avenue. Additional areas will be added to the online maps as they are identified or constructed with new conservation subdivisions.

The town anticipates trails off of Eleanor Drive and Chestnut Street to be added in the coming years. If residents are aware of other public trails not presently on the map, they are encouraged to contact the Department of Planning & Conservation.

The 2015 Open Space & Recreation Plan outlined goals and tasks for the Town to complete over the next five years, one of which is to provide opportunities for mobility locally and regionally with walking and biking trails. Striving toward that goal, the Department of Planning & Conservation and the Engineering Division mapped some of the town's existing trails.

Indicating the trails on the GIS Map is just the initial phase of the effort. Future phases include adding the Middlesex Canal trail to the GIS Map, and creating more detailed maps of each specific trail, which will also be made available online.

The trails were mapped using global positioning system (GPS) technology and satellite mapping. The condition of the trails vary, and users are encouraged to use caution as the terrain is uneven and trail markers are not necessarily visible throughout the trails. All recreational facilities including town trails are "use at own risk."

The Online GIS map is available from the Town's homepage at wilmington-ma.gov. For more information about the trails contact the Department of Planning & Conservation at 978-658-8238.

Letters to the editor

Cimaglia supports Bendel and Caira

Dear Editor

I am pleased to offer my strong support to Kevin Caira and Greg Bendel who are candidates for the Wilmington Board of Selectmen.

I have often remarked that volunteerism is the lifeblood of our community. The spirit of volunteerism is what makes our community so unique. Kevin and Greg are two individuals who have demonstrated a strong and unselfish commitment to community service. In my mind, they epitomize the spirit of volunteerism.

Kevin is a long time member of the Wilmington Sons of Italy, spearheading many important programs and initiatives that have benefited the town and its residents. His involvement in scholarship, athletic and charitable activities are well known. He is a long time supporter and active fundraiser for schools, youth sports, seniors and veterans' programs.

Kevin currently serves as Vice Chairman of the Yentile Farm Development Committee and the Wildcat Athletic Alumni and Friends Association.

I know that Kevin Caira has what it takes to be an effective selectman.

Greg Bendel is also the right choice for the Board of Selectman. As an elected member and Chairman of the Wilmington Housing Authority, he has demonstrated a commitment to ensuring that there is quality housing for Wilmington seniors.

I know first hand that he has been especially active in promoting programs that benefit our veterans and their families particularly as it relates to affordable housing. He has been an active member of the Wilmington Knights of Columbus donating countless hours in support of their many charitable endeavors.

Kevin and Greg have earned my respect for their lifelong dedication to Wilmington. I hope you will join me on April 23rd in voting for Kevin Caira and Greg Bendel. I am confident that their election to the Board of Selectmen will be beneficial for all of Wilmington.

Sincerely, Lou Cimaglia

Getting the lead out

By GEORGE R. ALLEN
Guest Columnist

Unless you have been put into a trance by pontificating politicians during this presidential primary season, you are probably aware of the drinking water crisis in Flint, Michigan. Here is a brief summary of the problem. In April 2014, a state appointed manager of the city, facing fiscal problems, decided to save money by ending Flint's contract to buy water from the Detroit water system. The city then began to draw water from the Flint River and put it through the city's treatment facility and out into the system. Shortly thereafter, consumers started complaining about the color and taste. Local and state agencies continued to insist that the water was fine. Little did the residents realize that the problem with the water wasn't something they could see but something more insidious that they couldn't see.

City and state officials didn't address the fact that the Flint River water was more corrosive (acidic) than what they had been receiving from Detroit and they didn't make the necessary adjustments in the chemicals they added. As a result, more corrosive water began entering homes throughout the city. Being an old water system, many homes had a lead service pipe that runs from the larger pipe in the street into their homes. The corrosive water soon began to leach lead from these service pipes into the tap water. The pipes in the street are typically made of cast iron or ductile iron.

Lead is a neurotoxin that can stunt growth and cause brain and kidney damage. Children are particularly vulnerable to lead poisoning.

The problem was finally detected by local doctors who saw spikes in the lead level in children's blood samples. Finally after 18 months, local, state and federal agencies acknowledged the problem and a political firestorm erupted. In the aftermath, an EPA regional chief resigned as did a Michigan state environmental official. Bureaucratic bungling resulted in a public health crisis and what some call environmental racism. It has become a topic in presidential debates and President Obama visited Flint and promised federal funding. Some experts put a 55 million dollar price tag on the work needed to eliminate the water quality problem in Flint.

Lead has been used for centuries to carry water because of its durability and its ability to be molded into pipes. In fact you can go back to the days of the Romans who used lead pipes to distribute water from their aqueducts to homes throughout the city. Lead cups and jugs were also used in their homes. Our word "plumbing" comes from the Latin word for lead — "plumbum".

There are many instances where we might have been exposed to lead. For example, before being banned in 1978, lead was a key component of paint because it made the paint more durable. That is one of the concerns when people buy old homes. For many years, lead was an additive to gasoline to prevent knocking in car engines. It was first used in 1923 and was banned in 1991. The plumbing in most homes is typically copper pipe. Until it was banned in 1986, the solder used to join the copper pipe and fittings contained lead. Even water faucets contained some lead in their manufacture. In early 2014, a new federal law went into effect requiring water faucets to be "lead free".

Lead service pipes are not unique to Flint. They exist in many urban neighborhoods across the country. Some news reports estimate that there could be as many as 6 million lead service pipes that deliver water into homes. The installation of such pipes ended in the 1940s.

There are no lead water service pipes in Wilmington. The MWRA reports that they still exist in some older homes in the Greater Boston area. The MWRA addresses the corrosiveness of its water by treating it with chemicals to make it less acidic so it will meet water quality standards for lead.

All water systems are required by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) and EPA to test tap water for lead in homes and public buildings, including at least 2 schools, in various representative locations. The number of sites is based on the size of the community. The frequency of sampling depends on prior test results.

The drinking water crisis in Flint, Michigan could have a ripple effect across the country by highlighting the importance of good water management and the need for investment in water infrastructure.

Champoux to vote for Caira

Dear Editor:

To my fellow Wilmington Residents, on April 23, you will have the opportunity to cast two votes for two new members of your Wilmington Board of Selectmen.

As a member of the Board of Selectmen now and it's current Chairman, I want to share that I will be casting one of my votes for Kevin Caira. Kevin's qualifications for the office of Selectman are broad and deep. His professional career experience working in the State's Retirement system and also in a municipal setting for the City of Amesbury, give him a unique appreciation for and understanding of the day to day budgetary and operational issues associated with local government.

Moreover, Kevin's long established presence as an active volunteer in a host of organizations, committees and initiatives illustrate his willingness and ability to contribute his time and talents for the betterment of our community.

I am voting for Kevin, and I ask you to do the same, not just because he is a life-long resident of our great town. But, because, through that life here, he has been a consistent, dependable, productive member of our community. We can count on Kevin Caira to bring his energy, knowledge and love for Wilmington to the office of Selectman.

I look forward to working with him and thank you for supporting him on election day, April 23.

Sincerely,
Michael Champoux,
Chairman Wilmington
Board of Selectmen

Newhouse supports Caira and Bendel

Dear Editor:

As local election day draws near, I would like to urge Wilmington residents to vote for Kevin Caira and Greg Bendel in the race for the Board of Selectmen. Together they bring a unique balance of experience, energy and leadership, while they share a remarkable and well established track record of service to their community.

As the current director of the Amesbury retirement system, after having served as a top level administrator at the Massachusetts State Retirement System, Kevin Caira is particularly well qualified to step into the role of Selectman seamlessly, having a firm grasp of the budgetary and other challenges facing towns like Wilmington.

As a long standing member and former President of the Wilmington Sons of Italy, Kevin helped organize numerous fundraising efforts to purchase vehicles and other needed equipment for town and school departments.

As State President, he secured grant funds to support the WHS foreign language program. Kevin's service as the Vice Chair of the Yentile Farm Committee and as a founding member and Vice President of the Wildcat Athletic Alumni and Friends Committee underscore his leadership skills, his unselfish initiative, and his relentless commitment to the community at large.

Kevin's commitment to Wilmington athletics in particular, as a youth baseball and basketball coach and as a football and softball coach at the high school level, is a "grass roots" effort of which anyone would be proud.

Greg Bendel has likewise distinguished himself as an invaluable, energetic and dedicated Wilmington volunteer. Despite the demands of serving as an eight year full-time teacher at the Shawshen Tech High School, where he has honed his leadership skills as the Lead Teacher in the Computer Science Department and Head Varsity Basketball Coach, earning the Commonwealth Athletic Conference 2015 Coach of the Year Honors, Greg has still found the time to serve his community in a variety of other ways. He has organized several community basketball camps for kids during the summer and school vacations.

Greg is also a proud member of the Wilmington Knights of Columbus, as well as an active and loyal supporter of the non-profit Local Heroes. He also committed countless hours working hand-in-hand with fellow residents, advocating and organizing support for a new Wilmington High School as a member of the Wilmington 4.0 Committee.

In order to distinguish themselves from their opponents during this election season, I suspect that all four candidates will repeatedly point to "their resume" in order to highlight their credentials. I agree with that approach, because qualifications matter.

From my perspective, the most important qualifications for Selectmen to possess are a deep sense of community spirit and a profound sense of volunteerism.

For those who share that view, the choices this year are clear, because Greg Bendel and Kevin Caira have consistently demonstrated those qualities for years. Please join me in supporting both of them for Selectmen.

Sincerely,
Selectman Mike Newhouse

A vote for Lavino

Dear Editor:

Having done my research on the backgrounds of each of the candidates for Selectman, reviewed the published answers to questions and watched the debates on WCTV, I have narrowed my choice to one candidate for Selectman.

As a resident of 40 years and following the issues the town has faced, I believe it is advantageous to the town to have an accomplished attorney as a member of the Board of Selectmen. Attorney Joseph Lavino presents an intriguing background of performing a thorough investigation of all issues before him, providing a basis for sound decision-making. Rather than "go along to get along", this refreshing approach to addressing the town's future issues is worthy of consideration by every town resident using good thinking.

Therefore, I am endorsing Attorney Joseph Lavino to become a member of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen.

Sincerely,
Robert Regan

O'Connell says Caira is the right choice

Dear Editor:

To all of the Wilmington Residents, it is with excitement and enthusiasm that I write this letter in support of Kevin Caira as a candidate for the Wilmington Board of Selectmen.

In my opinion, we have an opportunity on Saturday, April 23rd to elect a candidate that has all the necessary core qualities and attributes of an ideal Selectman to lead our town over the next three (3) years and into the future.

I have had the pleasure of knowing Kevin as a person and a community leader for several years and it is my honor to call him my friend. Over the years, I have continued to admire and respect not only Kevin, but also the entire Caira family who have all dedicated so much time and effort over decades for the betterment of our community. Their family legacy of philanthropy and volunteerism is extraordinary.

It was no surprise to me when seats became available on the Board of Selectmen that Kevin Caira immediately stepped into action and announced his candidacy. Kevin's long standing tradition of service to others and his willingness to support various town projects and initiatives are remarkable.

Over the past six years, I have had the opportunity to work closely with Kevin as a member of the Wildcat Athletic Alumni & Friends Organization and as a member of the Yentile Farm Development Committee.

My experience working with Kevin has been very positive and I have observed first hand Kevin's superior work ethic and keen ability to get things done.

Kevin is intelligent, hard-working, detail orientated, has excellent communication skills, is a team player, is a critical thinker and a creative problem solver. If elected, I believe Kevin will hit the ground running on Day 1 and will be a great asset to the Wilmington Board of Selectmen and to the residents of the Town of Wilmington for many years to come.

Kevin has a long history of impressive accomplishments both personally and professionally. For years, Kevin has volunteered to coach youth sports at various levels for both baseball and basketball. He has also been a long-time supporter of the Wilmington Band Parents and their programs, a member of the Wilmington Knights of Columbus and remains very actively involved in the Wilmington Sons of Italy.

Kevin has held many prominent positions within the Sons of Italy at the local, state and national levels and he has spearheaded numerous programs and fundraising drives in support of many important town initiatives.

Kevin is currently a Retirement Administrator for the City of Amesbury and prior to assuming his current position, he worked as an administrator for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts State Retirement System for 21 years.

In closing, please join me on Saturday, April 23rd in voting to elect a very deserving candidate, Kevin Caira, to the Wilmington Board of Selectmen. Kevin is the right choice and will be committed to ensuring that the Town of Wilmington continues to be a great place to live, work and raise a family. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Judith L. O'Connell

Bernie McNally honored by Selectmen

McNally is one of the most recognizable and welcomed faces to see around town.

"(McNally) is just a genuine guy," said Town Manager Jeffrey Hull. "If there were a Mr. Wilmington — Bernie would be Mr. Wilmington."

For more than one member of the Board, McNally's work had a personal impact, their children touched by the dedication and mentorship of the beloved local figure.

"You embody what Wilmington is all about," said board member Lou Cimaglia of McNally. "Your volunteerism, and your dedication to the town is just incredible. I always say volunteerism in this town is the lifeblood of this town, and you've embodied that your whole life."

Cimaglia expressed not only his gratitude for McNally's service, but his family's personal admiration.

"My children love you, and they enjoyed your presence at the camps, and the beach, and everything you've done. You've touched their lives."

The invitation by the Board was the second of two nights honoring McNally over the past week. Last Friday well-wishers, Recreation Department colleagues, and students gathered at Town Hall to celebrate Bernie's 50th birthday with cake, dancing, laughter, and fond memories of his years of involvement with Wilmington's Recreation Department. The event quickly became a formal dress affair, as many students heading to the Junior prom stopped by to celebrate with a man who has dedicated his life to improving their lives.

"That tells it all, right there," said Hull of the turnout. "He's meant so much to so many young people, taken them under his wing to some measure, and helped out so many."

Judith O'Connell praised

McNally's contributions to not only Wilmington's young generation, but his impact on the next generation to come.

"It's hard to summarize in just a few words what you have meant to this town... you have shaped the lives of so many children and have made an incredible difference to so many families in this town for so many years. I guarantee you that there will be life lessons future generations will learn because of you."

Board Chairman Michael Champoux then presented McNally with a plaque on behalf of the Board of Selectmen in recognition of his years of services and dedication to the town and its youth.

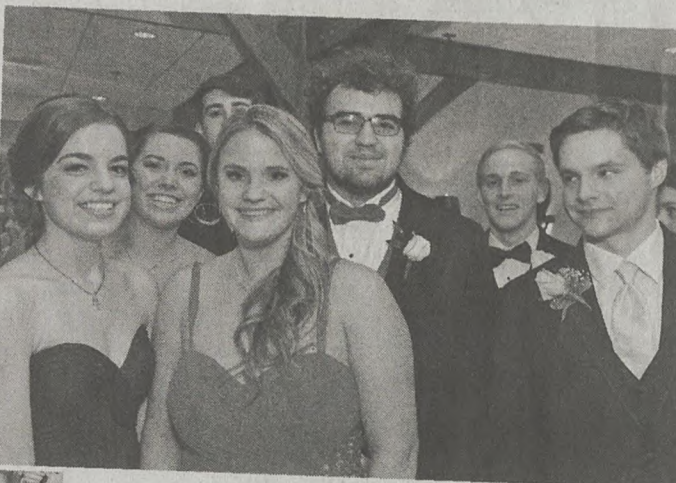

McNally has one more special event coming up. On April 29th, the Bernie's Wish fundraising event will raise money for the benefit of McNally's two young nephews, Patrick and Seamus. In 2014, McNally was diagnosed with terminal brain cancer. During treatments to battle progression of the disease, Bernie's brother Patrick passed away suddenly, leaving Bernie to care for Patrick's two young sons. The charity event will raise money to ensure the boys can continue to live in their home after Bernie's passing. The event will feature food, music, raffles and an auction to raise money for Patrick and Seamus.

The event will take place on April 29th at 7pm at Kitty's restaurant, 123 Main Street in North Reading. Tickets for the event are $20 per person prior to the event, and $25 at the door. The event is 21+.

Donations are gratefully accepted for raffle items or gift baskets at the event. If you'd like to donate contact, Lynn Ferrazzani at 978-657-7460 or email lferrazzani@verizon.net.

OSRAM sheds light on car care

By LISA KENNEDY-COX
News Correspondent

lisa.yourtowncrier.com

WILMINGTON - In addition to making its mark on the end of winter, April is also National Car Care Month, and a great time for getting your vehicle ready for spring and summer, according to the Car Care Council. While many focus on oil changes, brake pads and tire pressure checks, one critical yet often overlooked element is vehicle headlight maintenance—this month's focus. In fact, the National Institute for Traffic and Highway Safety reports that the main reason for reduced driving safety is dim or cloudy, improperly lit headlights.

"National Car Care Month in April is an ideal time for motorists to focus on their overall vehicle maintenance needs after the wear and tear caused by winter weather," said Rich White, Executive Director of the Car Care Council, a non-profit organization dedicated to educating motorists on the importance of regular vehicle care. "In addition to checking lubricants and fluid levels, looking under the hood, and ensuring brakes work properly, drivers must not forget about a very important safety component — a vehicle's headlights."

Local lighting company OSRAM Sylvania Automotive Division's Brian Noble, Marketing Manager, SYLVANIA Automotive Lighting, shared his expertise on the subject.

"Asking a simple question such as, 'Do you want to see better when driving at night?' can help motorists understand the importance of changing their headlights for an improved on-road experience," explained Noble. "Updating a vehicle's headlights can affect the lives of drivers and their overall experience on the road. Better headlights can help improve visibility and increase chances of seeing objects sooner in the event of an accident or hazardous road conditions. This is a simple maintenance check that drivers of all ages should prioritize when it comes to overall road safety."

Headlights are an active safety item and the first line of defense on a vehicle; if drivers cannot see objects on the road, they cannot react. To spread further awareness on automotive care, SYLVANIA Automotive Lighting recommends vehicle owners follow four best practices when it comes to proper headlight maintenance, not just during National Car Care Month, but year-round.

Noble underscores the importance of understanding choices in headlight performance levels. "When it comes to headlights performance, many consumers should know that there are a variety of choices available on the market to help suit their individual needs. For instance, there are options available that offer brighter down road visibility or whiter light which improves contrast and helps drivers distinguish objects on the side of the road better than basic headlights," said Noble.

Noble also stressed the importance of replacing headlights before they burn out, as burned out headlights pose a risk to both the driver and others on the road. "With one headlight out, drivers are essentially seeing half as well as they potentially could. If a vehicle owner cannot remember the last time headlights were changed, it may be time for replacements."

Noble suggests that headlights always be replaced in pairs. "It's very important to replace headlights in sets of two. Since headlights dim over their lifetime, a new bulb paired with an old bulb will create an uneven field of vision, which can be a major distraction on the road for both drivers and oncoming traffic."

Lastly, Noble provides a do-it-yourself approach to changing headlights. "Changing a vehicle's headlight bulb can be a simple process that doesn't require a mechanic or service professional. In fact, there are various online guides available and resources exist to help consumers swap out headlight bulbs in a matter of minutes," said Noble, cautioning, "Consult the vehicle's owner's manual for bulb/headlight replacement procedures, needed tools and safety precautions. Always wear safety glasses and work gloves, as well."

One singularity bid, two missing trumps

Jacques Maritain, a French philosopher who died in 1973, said, "A single idea, if it is right, saves us the labor of an infinity of experiences."

That applies to a splinter bid. Partner opens one heart, and you respond four clubs. What does that mean? In the old days, it was pre-emptive, showing many clubs and few points. It had two big drawbacks: it almost never came up, and it took the auction past three no-trump.

The splinter bid was invented independently by two Americans, Dorothy Hayden (who became Dorothy Truscott in 1972) and Dave Leigh Cliff. It shows a big fit for partner's last-bid suit, at least game-forcing values and a singleton (or void) in the suit just named — North's four-club response in today's deal.

South, with a strong hand, uses Blackwood before stopping in six hearts when he learns that a key king is missing.

After West leads the spade queen, how should South play?

Considering the trump suit in isolation, the percentage play for no losers — by about two percent — is to cash the ace. But that is the wrong play here. Declarer should take both of his spade tricks, cash the club ace, and ruff the club six in the dummy. Then he runs the heart queen (unless East shows out on covers with the king, of course). Here, the finesse wins and South is playing for an overtrick. But suppose West takes the trick with a singleton heart king. He is endplayed, forced either to lead into declarer's diamond tenace or to concede a ruff-and-sluff. Whichever he chooses, South loses no diamond trick.

Letter to the editor

Stewart will vote for Bendel

Dear Editor:

I am writing in support of Greg Bendel for Wilmington Selectman. I have known Greg since he was a student at Shawsheen Tech. I have watched him develop from a young man on the Shawsheen Tech basketball team to a fine leader of our community. His qualifications for this position are extensive.

A graduate of both Shawsheen Tech and UMASS Lowell, Greg has also served as Chairman of the Wilmington Housing Authority. He worked on the Wilmington 4.0 Campaign Committee advocating and planning for a new high school.

In addition to working as a teacher, Greg also coaches high school basketball for Shawsheen Tech. These are just a few of Greg's many qualifications. We are fortunate to have several people running for Selectman this year in Wilmington.

All the candidates will post their unique qualifications and resumes. But there is something that sets Greg apart and that is why he has my support. A lifelong resident of Wilmington, Greg has made a commitment to our community. He and his wife, Andrea Dipasquale Bendel (also a lifelong resident) own a home in town and have chosen Wilmington as the place to raise their family in the future. He has a vested interest in continuing to make Wilmington a great place to live for families and all residents.

Greg is a proud member of the Wilmington Knights of Columbus. He has been an active volunteer with the Local Heroes organization. Wilmington youth have benefited from the many community basketball camps

Greg has been involved in running as well.

Holding office is an important responsibility. But that should not be your sole commitment to the community. Knowing and understanding the issues that are important to the residents is the most important role as a Selectman. Greg has shown this ability by truly being part of the fiber that makes Wilmington, Wilmington.

Greg's experience, background, commitment to Wilmington, involvement in activities and groups in town and his genuine concern for the future of Wilmington make him extremely, and uniquely qualified to be a member of the Wilmington Board of Selectmen. I hope you will join me in voting for Greg Bendel on April 23rd.

Sincerely,
Jim Stewart

Wilmington's Chen promoted to Vice Chancellor at UMass Lowell

By KRISTA BRESNAHAN
News Correspondent

krista@yourtowncrier.com
WILMINGTON—Earlier this month, it was announced that Wilmington resident and UMass Lowell Vice Provost of Research Julie Chen was promoted to the position of Vice Chancellor for Research and Innovation. Chen's promotion to the role came after the committee conducted a nationwide search to replace outgoing Vice Chancellor Marty Meehan, who will become president to the UMass system of schools this July.

"I'm very excited about the promotion," said Chen, "there are so many great things happening at UMass Lowell. Research has almost doubled, student quality and success just keeps rising, exciting new faculty hires, I could go on and on. I am also very happy about the support I have received from so many people at the University; it feels good to know that people are so positive about what I've been contributing over the last several years."

Chen grew up in Webster, New York, near Rochester, but came to Massachusetts for college. She attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT), where she received a Bachelor's, Master's, and Doctoral degrees, each in mechanical engineering. While at MIT, Chen performed extensive research, and also helped to coach the MIT field hockey team.

Chen moved to Wilmington in 1992 after completing her Ph.D. and beginning her career as assistant professor at Boston University. She began working at UMass Lowell in 1997 when she was recruited to join the mechanical engineering department.

While teaching in the department, Chen also co-directs the Nanomanufacturing Center and the Advanced Composite Materials and Textile Research Center.

In her new role, Chen will serve as the chief research officer of the university, working closely with the provost and other team members to integrate research, scholarship and creative work with other academic and economic development areas on campus.

While this is a new position at UMass Lowell, a review of peer institutions revealed that it is common for executive leadership teams to include a research and economic development role.

Research is a fast-growing component at UMass Lowell, with annual expenditures nearly doubling since 2007. Including this role at the vice chancellor level illustrates the commitment of UMass Lowell to creating solutions that matter to communities close to home and across the globe.

"The new position will be a shift to a more external and strategic focus," said Chen, "for example, making sure people outside know about the great research, partnerships, and entrepreneurship happening at the University and creating more opportunities for our faculty, staff, and students at a state, national, and international level. These can be opportunities for research funding, industry partnerships, start-ups, input to policy decisions, visibility for the books and creative arts, etc."

Divisions that will now report to Chen include Entrepreneurship and Economic Development, Core Research Facilities, Institutional Compliance, New Venture Initiatives, Research Administration, and the Office of Technology Commercialization.

Research outside of the classroom, internships, and other experiences are an integral part of the undergraduate career these days, no matter what field or industry students elect to enter. These opportunities give college students more firsthand experience before they graduate and go on to other programs or start looking for a job.

"I would highly encourage them to get involved in research and other 'outside the classroom' experiences as undergraduates, because it really brings what you learn in the classroom to life. It lets you see how the theories and equations and philosophies can be used to have an impact on all of us," said Chen, "It also helps students explore what things are really interesting to them and what things just aren't a good fit."

Town of Wilmington is preparing a Facility Master Plan

The Town of Wilmington is preparing a Facility Master Plan to establish a long term strategy for the allocation of its municipal uses among buildings and sites. This planning will establish a sequence of short-term, mid-term and long-term recommendations that will guide the Town's decisions relative to investment, expansion, decommissioning, and rebuilding of our facilities.

The Facility Master Plan Committee is seeking residents' opinions on the Town's existing facilities. They have launched a survey that is 25 questions long and takes approximately 10 minutes to complete. The responses received will directly inform the development of the Facility Master Plan and serve as the next phase of the public input process. Opportunities for direct public input are scheduled throughout the Master Plan development process.

The Facility Master Plan Committee includes the Permanent Building Committee, the Town Manager, the Superintendent of Schools, Director of Planning and Conservation, and the Chair of the Finance Committee. The Committee is being assisted by a professional team led by The Cecil Group/Harriman and composed of facility planners, architects, engineers and cost estimators.

In conjunction with this effort, the Town is also looking into housing supply for Wilmington seniors. A survey of Senior Housing Needs was conducted in 2015 following the Town Meeting. Recommendations and options for housing that meets seniors' needs will be incorporated into the overall Facility Master Plan, as it addresses town-owned land and future uses. The Senior Housing component of the Master Plan project is being led by Valerie Gingrich, Director of Planning and Conservation.

The Facility Master Plan Committee meets the third Thursday of the month, at 7 pm in Room 9 of Town Hall.

Board of Selectmen discuss firing range, financial outlook for town

a unanimous vote.

Another addition to the Wilmington landscape will be more central. The Board voted unanimously to approve a proposed "Welcome to Wilmington" sign to be installed on the town common. The proposed site for the sign is on the Northeast point of the town common, where the town currently features the "Welcome Home" signs for returning service members.

The Board also approved the appointment of additional election workers for the upcoming Town election to be held on April 23rd.

After the conclusion of other business, Chairman Michael Champoux presented the Annual Report for Calendar Year 2015, citing the improvements and successes the town has enjoyed over the past calendar year. One of the biggest economic factors indicating the health of the Town's financial outlook discussed was the revitalized housing market in town and in the area, and the continued growth of single-family housing developments throughout town. Those, balanced with the presence of multi-family residential developments and the early phases of new, mixed-use, retail and residential projects, are giving existing and new residents greater choice from a varied, diverse housing stock."

In addition to robust real estate offerings, the report also outlined the uptick in new business moving into the area. Most notable was the arrival of major lighting and manufacturing company Osram Sylvania. According to their website, "Osram Sylvania is a leader in lighting solutions that feature innovative design and energy saving technology." The company is a major boon to the area, employing over 33,000 people worldwide, with the potential to increase local job offerings in the future. Small business also contributed to Wilmington's success in 2015, including K1 Speed racetrack, Savers thrift store, and more.

"Town finances, as indicated throughout this document, remain strong," Champoux cited in his report the benefit of the Board's positive relationship with Town Manager Hull. "The Board maintains its support of the Town Manager and the Administration's conservative budgeting and operations methods, spending within our means, saving for the future and investing in infrastructure where prudent and possible."

Other accomplishments cited throughout 2015 included the completion and opening of Wilmington High School, the opposition to the proposed Kinder Morgan Pipeline, the ground-breaking at Yentile Recreation Facility, and continued involvement in the committees and events that improve life in town.

"The spirit of our town is founded in its people. We, as elected members of your Board of Selectmen, are privileged to be able to serve you and work with the Town's Administration for the continued advancement of our common goals," said Champoux.

Two of those members, Michael Newhouse and Louis Cimaglia, were sitting at the table for the final time Monday night. Both members chose not to seek reelection in the upcoming race. Their colleagues honored the departing members with honorary plaques bearing gavels in a presentation ceremony. Champoux said he was "inspired by the example [Cimaglia and Newhouse] set... you are examples of how good work gets done by good people."

Champoux pointed out that leaving the board doesn't mean the two members are leaving Wilmington, and that their counsel, experience, and commitment to the town would continue beyond their tenure in the board.

Michael McCoy lightened the mood, revealing a little about the personal tastes of both members. He presented his departing colleagues with gifts of their favorite kinds of chocolate.

Judy O'Connell was visibly moved by the departure of the two longstanding members, describing them as "two great guys, and lauding their commitment to public service and patriotism. "You both love this town, you love your families, and you love your country. You've never once taken any of those for granted." She also acknowledged that the responsibility of serving as Selectman is not always easy. "Sitting on this board has come at great sacrifice to both of you."

As two members begin new chapters outside of the Board, the town will decide who will follow in their footsteps. Town elections are scheduled for April 23rd, including a contested Board of Selectmen race.

The next Board of Selectmen meeting will be held April 25th at Town Hall.

Look for more on Cimaglia and Newhouse's BOS career in future Town Crier editions.

Wilmington Historical Event

Plane crash at Town Park

BY LARZ F. NEILSON
Editor Emeritus

His name wasn't Charlie, but in case any members of his might family read this, that's the name we'll use.

Charlie was an expert carpenter. He could do beautiful things with wood. His finish work was precise. At one point, he made a model airplane, complete with a gasoline motor.

But Charlie had a problem with alcohol, and of course, that led to other problems in his life. Mrs. Charlie was not happy when he failed to pay child support, and when that happened, she would have him arrested and he would spend a few weeks in jail. The rooming house where he lived in Reading would always save his room while he was "on vacation." Apparently he paid his rent before the child support.

Charlie occasionally worked for a company in North Wilmington, nearly 60 years ago. He would do some carpentry and also drive a delivery route.

One day, Charlie returned from his route to find his car badly damaged. Mrs. Charlie had taken a tire iron to all the windows of his old Chevy. Then she open the hood and pulled out lots of wires.

Charlie was quite proud of his model airplane, and it was beautiful. It was not made from a kit. He had built it from scratch.

He took the plane to work, to show it off. He said he wanted to fly it, and one fellow worker suggested taking it to Town Park. So they went down there, Charlie, Dick and their boss, Doug.

In the middle of the ball-field, Charlie got the motor running. He picked up the controls, and had Dick pick up the plane to launch it. It flew! Charlie was having a great time, turning round and round, holding the cable controls.

"Let me fly it! Let me fly it!" said Charlie's boss. Doug had a "Type A" personality, dominant and insistent.

"No. You'll crash it," said Charlie.

But Doug wouldn't give up.

He let out a few choice words, and at last, Charlie relented. Doug took the controls, and . . . well, you can guess what happened.

Yep, Doug crashed the plane. Charlie's pride and joy was demolished.

Several years later, Doug was killed in an accident.

Friends tried to locate Charlie, but found that he was not well, living in a home for alcoholics somewhere in New Hampshire.

North Shore Jazz Project merges with Salem Jazz and Soul Festival

Two North Shore music non-profits with similar missions have merged. The Salem Jazz and Soul Festival and North Shore Jazz Project filed merger paperwork with Massachusetts' Attorney General in late 2015 and will retain the name Salem Jazz and Soul Festival. The band, made up of some of the best young jazz musicians on the North Shore, will retain its concert schedule with SJSF. According to Larry Claflin Jr., SJSF's co-founder and executive director, merging these two nonprofits has been a goal for a couple years. The Salem Jazz and Soul Festival was founded in 2007 and will celebrate its 10th season this summer. With a mission of producing free concerts and supporting music-education causes on the North Shore, the festival puts on eight free concerts a year, culminating in a two-day festival at the Salem Willows, featuring 10 bands, music-education and family tents, artisan vendors and beer pavilion. The 2016 Salem Jazz and Soul Festival will take place August 20-21. For more information about Salem Jazz and Soul or to audition for the 2016 NSJP All Stars please visit salem-jazzsoul.org.

JT Fortin Foundation Organization helps Autism

The JT Fortin Foundation for Autism is a non-profit charitable organization whose mission is to enhance the lives of people and families affected by autism spectrum disorder.

By providing access to early intervention services, autism specific water safety lessons, access to supplemental therapies, active lifestyle programs, arts and entertainment experiences and support in the transition to adulthood, we aim to make a difference one by one in any way we possibly can!

The Foundation was created by Executive Director George Fortin who lives in Windham, NH with his wife Jennifer and four sons. Their third son, Jack (6 years old), was diagnosed with Autism at 18 months and it is Jack's autism journey that has inspired the creation of the foundation. There's also several Tewksbury residents including Tom Cullity and his daughter Kerri on the Board of Directors, as well as Jack, who is Tom's godchild.

With the help of close family and friends, a Board of Directors was formed and plans for a number of fundraisers and activities began to take shape.

Established in May of 2015, the JT Fortin Foundation for Autism raised just under $7,000 in its first fundraiser in December which led to the establishment of the JT Fortin Foundation Scholarship for Swim Lessons with Swim Angelfish. This was a critical skill that the foundation wanted to help provide to the growing autism community as accidental drowning accounts for 91 percent of deaths among children 14 and under with autism. Swim Angelfish is a regional organization who provide swim lessons specifically designed to work with the physical or sensory challenges each swimmer with autism may face.

This initial push created some buzz for the JT Fortin Foundation and set the tone for its upcoming April event, the First Annual "Light Up the Night for Autism" fundraising gala!

The event was held on Saturday, April 2nd 2016 (World Autism Awareness Day) at the Wyndham Hotel in Andover, MA. Feature sponsors Neuro Drinks and Polar Distributors joined 270 attendees in the ballroom for a night of dinner, dancing and FUNdraising!

Some amazing auction and raffle items including Disney World Park Hopper passes, Julian Edelman signed football, Celtics and Red Sox tickets, Southwest Airlines passes and more helped drive donations throughout the evening.

The music of American Soul Exchange kept the crowd on the dance floor until the midnight hour and personal stories from Executive Director George Fortin and Keynote Speaker Shannon Desilets brought both tears and messages of hope and inspiration to the supporting crowd.

The night was a resounding success that brought awareness, to those that were learning a bit about autism for the first time and hope to those that continue to forge their own autism journeys! Over $20,000 was raised on the evening, which will go directly toward funding more water safety lessons, supplemental therapies and safety initiatives that include location devices and first responder training.

The foundation is hosting its #DoYouKnowJack Golf Tournament on September 23rd, 2016 at Far Corners Golf Course in Boxford, MA and will be hosting a community give back event for families and children affected by autism in early December!

There is also an awareness campaign built around the #DoYouKnowJack slogan, slated for the first half of 2017. #DoYouKnowJack, an obvious play on words, began shortly after Jack's diagnosis as George and Jen Fortin would joke that they didn't know Jack in regard to both their son Jack, who had regressed quite a bit at that time and in regard to autism spectrum disorders which they knew very little about at the time.

It was a way to keep an otherwise serious issue, lighter than it can be at times. It has grown into a way for close personal friends and family to raise awareness about autism by asking folks, "Do You Know Jack?"

With autism prevalence continuing to rise exponentially, chances are if you don't know Jack, you know someone like Jack!

Town Hall to display poems by fifth grade students

The Town Hall of Wilmington has a new installation of artwork. For the month of April, the Town Hall will be the temporary home of poems written by the North Intermediate School's 5th Grade class.

Each poem is accompanied by an illustration created by the student authors. The 23 poems were created as part of a collaboration between 5th Grade teacher Amy Iascone and North Andover Poet Laureate Karen Kline. The project is called LITTER-Art and is being displayed in conjunction with the celebration of Poetry Month.

A component of the LITTER-Art project is the collection of comments from visitors. The comments can express feedback on the wording of the poetry, or the feelings, memories or images the works invoke. Comment cards are available where the poems are installed and are being collected in the Town Manager's Office.

The comments will be distributed to the students and will provide them with insight into the impact their creative works can have on a community.

"This is a wonderful opportunity to foster creativity in our students. I am pleased to be able to host these creative works," said Town Manager Jeffrey Hull.

Poems are on display in the main entrance area of Town Hall until April 29, 2016.

Letterboxing is a fun, free activity to try

By PAIGE IMPINK
News Correspondent

Letterboxing is a fun and free activity and if you've not tried it you're in for a treat. Part treasure hunt, part I Spy, with a touch of The Amazing Race, this family-friendly sport is a relatively unknown adventure opportunity.

A cousin to geocaching (which uses GPS coordinates to find treasures), letterboxing is the low-tech version relying on visual clues and landmarks to guide the way. Letterboxers seek hidden, weatherproof boxes and access clues on one of two clearinghouses — www.atlasquest.com or www.letterboxing.org.

Using location information such as town, landmark, state or even country as a key word, participants can search for available boxes based on where they live or where they might be traveling.

The clues for finding a "box" take several forms. Some are poems, some are riddles, some are just straight instructions such as 'walk 75 paces past the elephant-trunked tree and look left', and some are excruciatingly cryptic.

A key for each hunt gives an indication of terrain level, distance required to walk, a pet-friendly location, any fee required (such as at a state park), or if the box is at an indoor location such as a library or a cupcake shop. Small retailers have discovered that hosting a letterbox is good for business as it brings people in that might otherwise not have stopped by.

The ultimate prize of the adventure is finding an ink stamp inside the box. These stamps can range from a premade, store bought stamp to intricately hand-carved creations that leave you stunned as they are truly fine works of art.

There is such a range of stamp designs, add-ons that travel with the finder, special stamps that are mailed around to other 'boxers, gatherings to exchange stamps, message boards for the community, and more. This hobby can be as simple or involved as you choose. It is a favorite with scout troops, too.

Each box and set of clues is created by a real person and includes, at minimum, an ink stamp and logbook. Finders open the box, ink the stamp on a pad, and put the image in their own notebook or journal.

The finder then takes his own signature stamp, inks it and stamps in the logbook, including date, and your letterboxing team name. The whole assembly is then carefully returned to its hiding spot for the next finder to enjoy.

Mapping out boxes to find during car trips is a smart way to break up a ride. Our family has a goal of finding a box in every state we visit. Online tools and apps help box "planters" check the status and condition of their box via notes from various finders.

We've not only found boxes, we have planted several, too. Through letterboxing, we have found new nature trails, hidden waterfalls, serene meadows and loads of stone walls and tiny parks tucked away all over the country. Not to mention the occasional cupcake, gelato and craft shop. Give it a try and you will be surprised what you find!

Wilmington event raises $3.8K for children's charities

Former Pats cheerleader hosts Zumba extravaganza

By SHERYL WALSH
News Correspondent

sheryl@yourtowncrier.com
WILMINGTON - Over 200 people filled the room at the North Intermediate School in Wilmington for the 9th Annual Zumba Event for Local Children's Charities held on April 10. This year the theme was "Gone Wild" and the dancers certainly did, both on and off stage.

Volunteer Wilmington DJ Steve Greco of 343 Productions kept the group going for the two-hour fitness and fun extravaganza. They raised $3,815 to set a new record for the annual affair.

Host and organizer Kelli LaVita brings the event to her home town every year. As a former Patriots cheerleader, LaVita was fortunate to be able to combine her love for dance and her passion for fitness, but there was more to it. "It also opened my eyes to the many local charitable organizations in the area," LaVita explained. Work supporting those organizations was a big part of being a cheerleader.

Today she still thrives on being able to give back. This year two organizations, Boston Children's Hospital and Birthday Wishes, will receive donations from the proceeds from the event.

Tewksbury's Tina Smith was among the high-energy crowd at the Wilmington Zumba event. She was thrilled to be there. "We love Kelli," she explained. "And Zumba is more than just a workout; we've made fabulous friends." More importantly, she was thrilled to help children's charities. "Why not?" she asks. "If you are lucky enough to have healthy children, why not give back to those who need it?"

Twenty instructors came to town from the Boston and southern New Hampshire area. Among them was a Wilmington local and a long-time supporter — Brian Considine. Considine has been a Zumba instructor for six years. He personally has recruited well over 100 people into the Zumba dance community. A fan right from the start, Considine sums up Zumba as his workout, his night out, and his therapy — all wrapped up in one 60-minute class.

Kelli LaVita's dance party, Team Loca Motion, is but one of nine doing events this year for children's charities.

Team Loca Motion is made up of Kelli LaVita and her sister Jennis LaVita, plus Alison Young, Danielle Spaulding, Kelli's 11-year old son Justin Armata, and Young's two sons, 11-year old son Jackson and 10 year-old Aidan. Even the young men contribute time and energy. From being part of the stage show to setting up lemonade stands, they are active members of Team Loca Motion.

The team has been working together since 2009. Each year each member sponsors at least one event to raise funds. The Zumba party is Kelli LaVita's major contribution. That first year alone the team raised $25,000 through their efforts.

The next event for Team Loca Motion is a Trivia Night on April 29th in Tewksbury; it is already sold out. There's still a chance to help the team though. On June 5th at 40 Chestnut Street, North Reading, Justin Armata will be hosting a lemonade stand fundraiser that will include a photo booth.

Cranberry Bog a favorite place to walk

By PAIGE IMPINK
News Correspondent

paige@yourtowncrier.com
CARLISLE, MA—As the days struggle to get warmer and the buds wriggle toward the sun, the desire to get out and walk and explore re-awakens in us. To that end, the Carlisle Cranberry Bog on Curve Street in Carlisle is ideal for walks by both man and beast. The bog is protected on town-owned conservation land that straddles the towns of Chelmsford and Carlisle.

Admission is free, and open to the public. A favorite dog-walking spot, the flat gravel paths are easy to navigate and fine for kids on bikes, strollers, or general walking.

The occasional horseback rider may also be seen (or evidence thereof), so watch your step.

Several retention ponds hold the water that floods and then recedes into the bogs through gates and diesel pumps. In October, the farmer who rents the land floods the bog to float the cranberries to the top, then harvests them.

It is quite an operation to behold. The deep crimson berries are so pretty against the green and brown backdrop, and there are often many left behind for little hands to grab, squish or throw.

The ponds are thriving ecosystems with swans, ducks, water lilies and frogs. In summer, some of the lily pads are so large, one is tempted to use them as stepping stones. Marvel at the dragonflies and water striders, noticing that the calm pond is actually an incredibly busy place.

As you traverse the trails

you might notice

some beehives set back off the paths. The hives are used for pollination, an important part of the equation in cranberry production.

They are put there by the folks that run Great Brook Farm nearby, and who also manage the cranberry operation here.

Listen and watch for the birds all around, obviously thrilled for the abundance of food and safety this habitat provides. You may even catch evidence of a beaver, or spot a groundhog.

The wooded areas are also great for exploring. Whether you follow the Pipeline Trail or the Otter Slide Trail, they are marked with blazes to keep you on track. There are several letterboxes and geocaches on the property, which adds a layer of adventure to any walk.

Trail runners and mountain bikers are drawn to the bog for the paths that include some slopes, gnarled roots, stumps and rocks. Our family enjoys walking at the or after a holiday meal, and also on the occasional weekend outing so the kids can burn off some energy.

Interpretive signs give information about various aspects of the property and how the gates and ponds are used in the cranberry harvesting process. A renovation of the 1900s Bog House is also underway.

According to the Town of Carlisle website, the area is made up of 400+ acres in Chelmsford and Carlisle with forty currently dedicated to cranberry production.

The land was once the property of the Lowell Cranberry Company, and has been an active bog since the turn of the last century. Carlisle has a Trails Committee that maintains detailed maps of all of the walking areas at the bog and surrounding lands. Check it out at carlisletrails.phworks.com.

Wilmington Historical Place

Perry's blacksmith shop was a landmark

By LARZ F. NEILSON
Editor Emeritus

Perry's blacksmith shop was quite an institution in East Wilmington. It was, to the farmers and gentry of Wilmington, a very necessary place of business, to which they periodically took their horses, for new shoes. It was always a broken-down place, with soot and coal dust from the forge. The tin signs on the walls advertised products and pointed directions, but they also covered holes.

Its location had been just a piece of open farmland along Woburn Street when Asa Sheldon moved a blacksmith shop there in 1835. He also brought along a blacksmith, John S. Perry, from Charlestown.

When Lowell Street was built, about 15 years later, it crossed Woburn Street next to the blacksmith shop. The corner took the name of the blacksmith.

Sheldon was a prominent contractor in the early 19th Century. His autobiography, Wilmington Farmer, is in the Wilmington library. In 1935, he was hired to excavate the top of Pemberton Hill in Boston and fill in land where North Station would be built.

The work was done by men with ox carts. To keep the oxen shod, Sheldon built a blacksmith shop in the area of the excavation, and hired two blacksmiths. One of them was Perry.

Once the project was completed, Sheldon moved the blacksmith shop to Wilmington, where it would remain for more than a century.

It was certainly a man's world, everything you'd expect a blacksmith shop to be. There might be a card game in the back room.

John W. Perry

In spite of that, there was one aspect of the shop that nobody would have guessed. The blacksmith shop, for three-quarters of its existence, was owned by women.

John S. and Martha Perry moved into the farmhouse next to the blacksmith shop, and proceeded to raise a family with 11 children, nine of whom were girls. When Perry died in 1865, his son, John W. Perry took over operation of the shop. However, because he was only 17, the building was left to his older sister, Alice, 22.

In 1871, Alice Perry married James Murray, a Civil War veteran. They had two daughters, Emma (1873) and Edith (1885). Murray opened a store in the back of their house. He later built a store on the southeast corner of Lowell and Woburn streets.

John W. Perry ran the blacksmith shop, but he never owned it. The 1900 and 1910 books of real estate valuations show his aunt, Alice J. Murray owning it, with a value of $600.

When Alice died, she left the blacksmith shop to her daughters, Edith Symmes and Emma Murray. With Emma running the store across the street, the sisters were able to keep an eye on the blacksmith shop. It is not known if there was any financial arrangement, if Perry paid any rent.

In 1924, Emma married

Perry's blacksmith shop was photographed some time after 1911 by Ed Nelson Eames. At right is Lowell Street, which Emma Murray Sargent and Edie Murray Symmes called "the new road."

Henry W. Sargent, also known as "Henny Penny," who owned the Darius Buck house at the end of Wildwood Street. Henry and Emma then shared the house with Edie and her husband, Herbert Symmes. Symmes' sister Flora was the first wife of Herb Barrows. She died in 1907.

Wilmington had many blacksmith shops, but Perry's blacksmith shop was usually quite busy. As winter came on, farmers and teamsters would bring their horses to be shod with winter spike shoes. At times, there would be several horses tied up, along Woburn Street. Perry would send out a helper to remove one shoe from each waiting horse, just to be sure the owner wouldn't decide to take the horse somewhere else.

Horse shoeing was only a part of the business. Wagons were also built and repaired in the shop. Outside, on the ground, was a granite slab, on which a hub of ironwood would be set. The spokes would then be set around the hub, and the outside of the wheel would be placed around the spokes. Then the "tire" would be applied, iron, still hot from the forge. When water would be poured on the iron, the metal would shrink and tighten the wheel.

But to imply that it was all work and no play at the Perry blacksmith shop would be inaccurate. The blacksmith shop was sort of a social center for many of the farmers. The back part, which was built after the shop had been moved from Boston, was a place for card games and dominoes, especially on rainy afternoons when the farmers could not work in their fields, winter afternoons, more than summer.

There was Carl Pettengill, Charlie Sargent, Charlie Blaisdell and Herb Barrows, to name a few. Herb was the best domino player, according to all accounts, and dominoes are not the simple game that some people would be led to believe. With Herb Barrows, it really was a game of skill. He could, almost at will, block up all the available openings for the other players.

There was whist, too, not the bridge of today, but the old fashioned kind of whist where the last card was turned up and would become trumps. Of course, there were always bets on the outcome. That was a big part of the game — not big bets, but bets just the same.

And where there are horses, there too will be racing. Those farmers knew their horses, and they always had one or two set aside for the sole purpose of drawing the family buggy, or perhaps for racing. Herb Barrows was one who always had one of the better horses. He and Charlie Blaisdell, both very wiry and athletic, used to race from the corner of Main Street to the blacksmith shop, the length of Lowell Street, on most any occasion.

John W. Perry died in 1926. Other blacksmiths ran the shop after that. One of them was Morris Laffin. He was still there in 1940, but the blacksmith shop was gone by 1950.

Emma ran the store until her death in 1954. The following year, it was sold to John Lucci, who opened his business there in early 1956. Lucci's family now owns three corners of the intersection.

The corner where the blacksmith shop sat for more than a century, owned for nearly 20 years by developer Michael Howland, will soon become the site of a new diner.

120th Annual Boston Marathon

Vanisky moving in on big challenge

By BRENDAN FOLEY
Sports Correspondent

BrendanMFoley@Outlook.com

WILMINGTON- It has been a long and winding road to deliver Tracy Vanisky to her Wilmington home, a journey that has spanned decades and the globe. To her surprise, it was taking to the road that made her fully appreciate that home. Now, with a bid to take part in next week's Boston Marathon, Vanisky may be forced to close the book on the very activity that cemented her place within the community.

Vanisky served in the military for over a decade, beginning as an Army reservist before being deployed following 9/11. After her service, she remained overseas as a civilian with a position in the Department of Defense, and it was while living in Europe that she met her husband, Edward Vanisky.

The two eventually returned stateside and settled in Vermont.

"I always liked running," Vanisky said. "When I got out of the Army, I immediately started having kids. As soon as I had my last child, I told myself that I had to do something for me."

The Vaniskys, including their children Braeden, Rhys, and Avery, picked up stakes and relocated to Massachusetts after Edward opened up his own practice, the Oral & Facial Surgery Center in Burlington. After

WHS Baseball Preview

Pitching and defense will be key for Wildcats this season

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

jamiepote@hotmail.com

WILMINGTON - Certainly last year's season was a big disappointment. The Wilmington High School Baseball team were one of the state's best teams during the pre-season, while the Wildcats had not only high expectations, but talent. The team struggled for consistency, battled injuries and finished 11-10 overall including a first round state tournament loss to league rival Belmont.

A handful of key players have since graduated - especially slugger Jamie Hill in the middle of the order - but the team returns three outstanding pitchers, a golden glove center fielder and two other experienced starters. Those ingredients already gives the team optimism for yet another season filled with expectations.

"The kids are ready to go and are chomping at the bit," said veteran coach Aldo Cairra. "There hasn't been as much snow as there was last year, but we've still have been inside for a lot of the pre-season. We've had a couple of scrimmages but really haven't been outside all that much. We'll see about this season."

"We definitely have pitching experience and I love our team defense. We're very solid up the middle with our second baseman-shortstop and center fielder returning."

Any good baseball team's success depends on pitching and this year's roster not only has quality pitching but a quantity of it as well. It starts with No. 1 pitcher Jackson Gillis, who has already signed on to pitch at Vanderbilt University and will very likely be chosen in June's Major League Baseball Draft.

Last year the left-hander finished the regular season with a 2-3 record and a 3.00 ERA including striking out 60 batters in 35 innings.

The team's No. 2 starter, Matt Woods, also left-handed, started out red-hot last year winning his first four games before losing his final three. He finished the regular season at 4-3 with a 3.31 ERA including 36 strikeouts in 46 innings.

The third starter, sophomore Danny Gracia, had a sensational freshman year last year. On the mound he finished 2-1 with an 1.85 ERA, including 14 strikeouts in 22 innings.

Already having three starters back who combined for eight wins and 103 innings, it looks as if Wilmington is in real good shape to be very competitive once again this season.

"Because of the weather, we haven't had those guys (Gillis and Woods) throw as much as we would have liked so their pitch count isn't as high right now," said Cairra. "But I think they are both ready to go. I think the first time they go out, they will be limited to probably eighty pitches or so and hopefully that's enough to get us through five or five innings and then as they go along their pitch count will get higher."

Gracia and Graham Smith are two very talented athletes and sophomores, who will not only bat at the top of

Third Annual Chicks With Sticks Event

Pink Snipers prevail, 1-0 over Dekem Divas in final game

By BRENDAN FOLEY
Sports Correspondent

BrendanMFoley@Outlook.com

STONEHAM- The third annual Chicks with Sticks game held on Sunday afternoon, packed the Stoneham Arena with adoring fans and kept the hundreds of cheering, clapping, chanting attendees on a massive energy spike for the entire length of the over three-hour exhibition.

Devoted to raising money for both Wilmington Youth Hockey and breast cancer support and treatment, the Chicks delivered more hockey and more fun than ever before.

This year, the event consisted of three games with four teams playing. The Pink Snipers took the ice against the Goal Diggers in the first game, while the second game saw the Blades of Steel go head-to-head with the Dekem Divas. These first two games consisted of three 15-minute periods with running time.

The winners of the first two games then squared off in a final 15-minute match with running time. And it was the Pink Snipers that defeated the Dekem Divas to win the whole thing, 1-0.

"It feels good!" cheered Tricia Lambert of the Snipers. Lambert was one of the founding members of the game here in Wilmington. Celebrating the victory with her teammates and daughter, Julia, 7, Lambert was abuzz with energy. "It feels real good!"

The Snipers were propelled to their victory by goalie Nicole Crowley, who did not give up a single goal in either game. Crowley faced ten direct shots on net in the final game and did everything short of standing on her head to assure victory for the team.

Crowley's daughter, Samantha, 7 (though she specifies "almost 8") sang the national anthem to an arena stuffed full of fans, and did not miss a note.

The winning goal was notched by Laura Hansen with 8:35 remaining in the game.

The victory did not come easy, as Diva offense like Betsy Gabardi and Kim Lynch battered away at the Sniper defense and goaltender. But the Pink Snipers stood firm and walked away the champions of this year's game.

Also on the winning squad of Snipers were Tracy Spaniol, Kelly Richards, Domenica Cabral, Michelle Guyette, Laura Murray, Kim Ebert, Ellen Sheehan, Christine Mehr, Jo Newhouse, Tina DiCenso, and Jackie Hartzell. Shaun Spaniol and Jarred Cabral served as head coaches.

Opposing the Snipers were the very talented members of the Divas, including Jennifer Gibbons, Danielle Tucker, Milissa Churchill, Kathy Timmons, Lisa Mackenzie, Kim Lynch, Traci Medeiros, Kristin Kelley, Joan Mullarky, Betsy Gabardi, Carle Dinan, Kristine Marzilli, and Anne Porter in net. The Divas were coached by Mark Barry, Keith Medeiros, and Chris Splaine.

But as anyone can tell you, the game is about more than who wins or who loses. For the women who take part, Chicks with Sticks is a chance to meet and bond with other women, to share in an athletic experience, to do something good, and to truly have something of their own that is apart from the hustle and bustle of careers, children, and all the millions of concerns that go into any given day.

"It's just awesome women and it's something new," said Christine Mehr, a newcomer to the game.

Many participants in this year's games had seen the previous Chicks with Sticks games and leapt at the opportunity to take part. Tina DiCenso does not have children in the youth hockey program and assumed she would always be on the outside looking in as her friends enjoyed the game. When the restrictions were lifted to let any woman who wanted to play in, DiCenso did not hesitate to sign up right away.

"My kids aren't in youth hockey, so this is a whole other world for me," DiCenso said. "I came the past two years and supported them, because I have some good friends who do it. It looked like so much fun, and they've raised so much money for good causes and I just wanted to be a part of it."

"When I heard it was opening up, I was immediately like, 'Sign me up!'"

"I loved it," said Joan Mullarky, one of the event organizers. "The crowd was great. It was so great to look out into the stands and see so many fans out there. A lot of the newcomers were so nervous the night before the game, and then once you get out there everyone did just find and the experience is just unbelievable."

Along with the game, attendees were treated to festivities including a bake sale, raffles, Chuck-A-Puck, and a DJ that scored the entire proceeding with a propulsive beat including everything from "The Final Countdown" to the hits from Beyonce and Guns 'n' Roses.

Proceeds from the game will be split between local Youth Hockey and the Ellie Fund, a cancer-patient support program.

"It is an organization that provides auxiliary services to women who are undergoing treatment for breast cancer," Milissa Churchill, player and one of the event organizers, said in an earlier interview with the Crier.

"Their idea is to provide services like child care, food donations, house cleaning, so that while a woman is undergoing treatment her focus can be on family and healing and not worrying about how she is going to get food on the table."

The ladies on the ice were bonded by this common goal, leading to an atmosphere of joy and community spirit. Players could be glimpsed with giant smiles behind their helmets as they powered down the ice, and more than one collision/check ended with the women pulling each other up so they could get back to the game.

Of course, even with all this friendliness and team spirit, people still want to win, and everyone worked hard for those wins.

"We gave it our all in those last ten minutes," Lambert said.

"I think if you play any sport, you want to win," Mullarky said. "Having that competitive edge just made people want to play a little bit harder. It was great competition."

Given how thoroughly entertained every spectator and player seemed as they left the Stoneham Arena, it is safe to say that everyone won.

FIRST GAME

The Pink Snipers began their march to victory during the first game of the day, when they took the ice against the Goal Diggers.

Tracy Spaniol got the first goal of the day, followed shortly thereafter by Laura Hansen. A second goal by Hansen in the third period put the Snipers over the top with a 3-0 victory.

Despite their loss, the Diggers boasted a number of strong performances, chief among them Jan Holden in net. Holden faced 19 shots over the course of three periods and made several seemingly impossible saves.

A resident of Andover, Holden played on Phillips Academy's first ever girls team before going on to play at Brown University. Despite the 35 year absence, but Holden took up her blades and goalie pads once more for the cause and the game.

"I wanted to be supportive of women that are challenged with breast cancer, but I also want to inspire the younger girls to play and have fun," Holden said. "It feels great. My feet don't work as fast as my mind does, but it's a lot of fun to start up again."

Lynn Kelley and Laura Ahern provided strong support in front of the net, pushing away Sniper shooters to give Holden as clear a view as they could manage. Karen Davey proved to be even more aggressive on defense, grabbing the puck and making mad dashes for the Pink Snipers' zones.

The Diggers kept up the energy on offense as well. Kerry White danced around the Pink Snipers' defense and flung shot after shot at Nicole Crowley, the Pink Snipers' goalie, only to see Crowley make the save. Kelly Martinson had a beautiful shot in the second period, only for Crowley to again make the save.

The Goal Diggers also saw strong effort from Sara Gouthro, Jennifer Driscoll, Kelly Constantine, Carmelina Bernazani, Alison Smith, Kristie Middleton, and Julie Breen. The team was coached by John Bernazani, Tom Perault, and Mike Uretsky.

"The group of girls are very supportive," said Julie Breen. "Everyone is very welcoming. There's four teams today, but we're all one. It's just a great experience."

SECOND GAME

For the second game of the day, the Dekem Divas defeated the Blades of Steel. A close contest for much of the match, the Divas were able to pull off the win with a final score of 4-1.

The Divas were first on the board thanks to a goal off the stick of Lisa Mackenzie with 13:57 left to play in the first period.

The Blades were not going to let the Divas walk away with the game so easily and began to fight back. Madison Barry led the charge, firing shot after shot at Diva goaltender Anne Porter. Porter stood firm and held off all offensive overtures until, with only 2:55 remaining in the period, Amy Young slid the puck from the blue line and through the crease for the tying goal.

The stalemate did not last for long. Within 30 seconds of the start of the second period, Kim Lynch of the Divas notched what would prove to be the winning goal for the Divas. Lynch scored again with 5:44 remaining in the period.

Joan Mullarky picked up an empty net goal in the closing moments of the third period.

The center of focus for much of the game was Blades goaltender Katherine Holden. Holden, an Andover native and high school sophomore whose mother Jan played goalie for another team, stepped in to help after another woman was injured, and she gave all she could for the effort.

Holden faced 23 shots, of which she stopped 20, blocking slap shots and wrist shots and shots from just about every conceivable angle.

"It was really fun," Holden said. "It's always fun to play hockey, especially when it is just for fun."

The Blades did everything they could to support Holden, with Barry even going so far as to literally crash the net. In the defensive zone, Sandra Savage was a particularly strong player for the Blades.

As a whole, the Blades team fought as hard as they could, a team that included Melissa Staples, Lisa DiZoglio, Dawn Cornish, Keri LaRosee, AnnMarie McCarthy, Brooke Green, Kelli Keck, and Lisa Cyr. The team was coached by Kevin Cyr and Scott Audette.

"My sister-in-law has breast cancer, and she is a fighter," said Susan DeMarco of the Blades. "This is my first time playing. I came last year and I heard about it from friends. I decided to join it and I'm so glad I did. It was very much worth it."

"I thought it seemed like so much fun," said Christine Breen, also of the Blades. "It was amazing. It was pretty much the most fun I've ever had."

Team wins opening meet

Boys Track team looking to build off last year's success

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
WILMINGTON -- The Wilmington High Boys Spring Track team will be looking to build on last year's 4-2 record, and with several talented returning athletes, it looks as if they will have a very good chance to do exactly that.

Wildcats coach Mike Kinney will be looking to the senior leadership of his captains Evan Sperlinga, Deven Langenfeld, Kyle Nelson, and Conor Bailey to set the tone for his team both on and off the track.

On the track, all four athletes are coming off outstanding seasons with Sperlinga having finished seventh in the 100 meters at the Division 3 Eastern Mass Meet in a time of 11.48 and 15th in 200 meters. Nelson meanwhile was tenth in the shot put at the Division 3 meet with a throw of 43-09.75, and Langenfeld was 12th in the triple jump with a distance of 39-08.75.

Junior Joe Gaudreau was seventh in the 200 meters at the Division 3 meet in a time of 22.98 seconds, and will compete in both the 200 and the 4x100 relay this season.

In addition to once again competing in the 100 meters, Sperlinga will also compete in the 400 and the 4x100. Nelson meanwhile, will compete in the shot put and the discus.

Other strong returning athletes will be seniors Brad Aldrich in the 200 and the 4x100 and Steve Godfrey in the 400 and the 4x100.

"The 4x100 team (Gaudreau, Godfrey, Aldrich and Sperlinga) should do well in dual meets and in the post season," Kinney said. "They should make a run at the school record."

In the sprints, other contributors should be senior Colin Scalona and sophomore Tom Hogan, while in the jumps, Langenfeld and Hogan will lead the triple jump, Russell Abbott and Sperlinga will lead the long jump, and senior Chris Patrone, junior Dan Judkins, Gaudreau, and senior Mason Ouellette should do well in the high jump.

In the hurdles, Langenfeld, Judkins, and senior Ryan Williams should do very well in the 110-meter and 400-meter hurdles.

The distance crew is led by Bailey and Tim Scalona, with a strong group of underclassmen, including juniors Ray Russell, Dave Bell, Justin Ekstrom, DJ Kenney, Russell Abbott, Jason Dunn, sophomores Jesse Valente, Aditya Gautham and Dillon

Greenhalgh along with freshman Vincent Delacruz. In the throwing events, Matt Abbott should do well in the javelin and Langenfeld, senior, Ted Veerman, and juniors Nick Gorham, and Conor Kalbridge will compete in the discus and shot put.

Promising newcomers for the Wildcats will include James Sheehan, Liam Rooney and Liam Dargatzis in the discus, Brendan Daly and Justin Usuomon in the shot put, junior Tate Kennedy and sophomore Nolan Kane in the javelin, freshman Max Duong and sophomore Sean Braz in the 400, and sophomore Brendan Ross and freshman Joe Dumolin in the sprints.

Kinney has been impressed in the preseason with not only the talent of his roster, but also with the depth.

"We have seventy-six athletes on the team and practice has been going very well. This is the largest group I have seen in fifteen years," Kinney said. "I am pleased to see the growth of the program the widespread participation. I am very pleased with the work ethic, commitment and focus of the team. The seniors have been doing a great job creating an environment that is supportive and competitive at the same time."

In their first meet of the season the Wildcats got several outstanding performances on their way to a 75-61 home win over Melrose on Monday.

The Wildcats had a very good day in the throwing events, with Nelson winning the shot put with a throw of 44'1".

Meanwhile, Langenfeld won the discus with a throw of 104'10", and Kennedy and Matt Abbott took the top two spots in the javelin with Kennedy throwing 126'10.5 and Abbott following close behind at 121'8".

Wilmington swept the long jump led by Russell Abbott with a distance of 17'11.23", Sperlinga at 16'10" and Ian Falcon at 16'6".

Langenfeld won the triple jump with a distance of 38'4.5" and Falcon taking third at 35'8.75", while in the high jump Patrone took first place with a height of 5'7".

Things went well for the Wildcats on the track as well with Judkins taking second in the 400 meter hurdles in a time of 64.8 seconds, and Langenfeld third in 68.2 seconds.

Gautham took third in the two mile in a time of 11:34.7, while the Wildcats swept the 110-meter hurdles with Langenfeld (18.3), Judkins (18.5) and Ryan Williams (19.5), pacing the field.

Girls hoping to continue success from indoor season

By MIKE IPPOLITO

sports@yourtowncrier.com
The Wilmington High Girls Outdoor Track team will be looking to build off the momentum of a tremendous indoor season that saw them go 5-0 and win the first league title in program history.

Wildcats coach Brie Karow knows it will not be easy to duplicate that kind of success this spring, but she is confident in the abilities of her talented squad.

"We are hoping to continue that success in the spring," Karow said. "It's true that we are a small team and there are many additional events in the spring compared to the winter season, however, we have some unbelievable returning talent in our senior leaders."

Those senior leaders start with the tremendous trio of Julia Gake, Elisabeth Olson and Samantha Pitzi. All three are coming off great seasons last year, including outstanding efforts in the Eastern Mass Division 3 meet where Olson finished 24th in two mile in a time of 12:34.84, Gake finished ninth in the 800 meters in a time of 2:26.97 and Pitzi was 22nd in 800 in a time of 2:36.62.

Other seniors Karow will be counting on will be sprinters Kaila Bavin, Jess Lifton and Katie Thompson, middle distance runner Taylor Santry, distance runners Eva Nesline, Annie Romanzo and Mira Patel, throwers Katy Bischoff, Charlotte Sulick and Jamie Shanning and hurdler Christina Cox.

Juniors on the team will be throwers, Sofia Puccio, Elizabeth Ecklekamp, Arianna Scoppetulo, and Heather Niemiec, along with hurdler Danielle Baldi and distance runner, Anna De la Cruz.

Sophomores will include sprinters Hailey DeJesus, Lailoo Perriello, Alexia Luna, Ivie Usuomon and Taeya Peroni, throwers Avery Andersen and Jackie Champoux and distance runner Abigail Genter.

Freshmen newcomers to the team will include Emma Garrity, Amie Russell, Tori Sheehan, and Paige Gallucci.

"We are excited and hopeful for a successful season individually and as a team," Karow said. "These young women are extremely hard working and reflect what it truly means to be student athletes."

WHS Sports Round-Up

Both Tennis squads, Girls Lax fall in openers

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
Both the Boys and Girls Tennis teams at Wilmington High kicked off their season on Monday against Belmont, with the girls hosting the Marauders and the boys traveling to Belmont. It was a tough start for both teams, as the boys fell by a score of 4-1 and the girls dropped a 5-0 decision.

BOYS TENNIS

On the boys side, junior Evan Meyers earned a hard fought 7-5, 3-6, 7-5 over Belmont's Caleb Harris in first singles, his first match at the top of the lineup after playing third singles last season.

It was the only victory of the day for the Wildcats, however, as the Marauders dominated the rest of the matches.

"I thought Evan did a really good job in his match," Wilmington coach Rob Mailey said. "He was down 5-2 in the first set and he fought back to get that win, and then he did a real good job in the third set as well. He was up 5-3, and the kid came back to tie it up, but Evan didn't get rattled and he came back to win it."

Despite the lopsided loss, Mailey was not discouraged by his team's effort against Belmont.

"They are a very strong team, so to even win one match against them was actually pretty good," Mailey said. "We will just keep trying to improve with each match, and I know the kids are working hard to try and do that."

The Wildcats will be back in action on Thursday when they travel to Lexington.

GIRLS TENNIS

The Wilmington Girls Tennis team also faced a very strong opponent when taking on Belmont, whose girls program is equally as capable as their boys team.

The young Wildcats squad did their best to compete, but the experienced and talented Marauders just proved to be too much to overcome, starting with first singles where freshman Emily Hill, in her first ever varsity match, battled hard but fell by a score of 6-2, 6-0 to Amanda Jung.

Sophomore Sam Maragioglio played a great second set, but came up on the short end of a 6-1, 7-5 score in second doubles to Rosy Rouskova, while junior Jess Nussbaum fell in third singles by a score of 6-2, 6-2 to Hannah Reed.

In first doubles, the team of Christina Woods and Lou Schramm fell by a score of 4-6, 6-2, 6-3 to Belmont's Sam Paolillo and Julia Logan, while in second doubles the team of Christina Wright and Lauren Field dropped a 6-0, 6-0 decision to Lena Jiang and Kiara Holm.

GIRLS LACROSSE

It was a rough start to the season for the Wilmington High Girls Lacrosse team, as they suffered a 16-2 loss to Ipswich on Monday afternoon. The Wildcats started a little slow in this one and found themselves in a 12-1 hole at halftime before playing much better in the second half.

For first year coach Ashley Kelley, her first game as head coach was a bit of a disappointment, but she is confident her players will put this game behind them and continue to improve.

"This was not how they are capable of playing. They worked so hard for weeks and then kind of fell apart during the first game," Kelley said. "There were a lot of nerves and a lot of questioning of how they would do before the game even started and as a coach it's really hard to control those emotions and thoughts to keep them all in it. The kids didn't go into it mentally prepared at all. They played scared, and let Ipswich control the game."

Kelley feels that part of the issue for her players is convincing themselves of that they can be a good team.

"My biggest challenge with them is how to change their mindset because they are no longer a losing team and they need to have confidence," Kelley said. "My favorite line to them is no matter how good of a player you are, you walk on that field and you own it and you just enjoy being out there and crush it every single time. It's all about how you carry yourself and getting in that confident mindset and once the team is like that you guys see it in each other and that's how you win games. Confidence not intimidation."

With that said, Kelley thinks her team will respond well after their humbling start to the season.

"I know each and every one of them have the talent but they need to realize it themselves and do it together as a team," Kelley said. "At the end of the game we had a long talk and I think this game was a great wake up call to them. And they finally understand at least a little better of what I was trying to get through to them."

Sophomore Olivia Carpenito and senior captain Ashley Warren were the goal scorers for the Wildcats, while senior Emily Loud played a strong game in net despite the lopsided score.

"(Emily) played great in net. She was getting hammered down there and it's hard to keep it up when you're constantly getting shot and scored on," Kelley said. "But it's a team effort and they were all getting beat and giving up easy shots as a team."

WHS Hall of Fame nomination deadline, May 6

The Wilmington High School Athletic Hall of Fame Committee has announced that the nomination deadline for this year is May 6, 2016. All nominations must be postmarked no later than the deadline in order to be considered.

Shawsheen Tech Softball team defeated by AC in season opener

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com
BILLERICA -- The Shawsheen Tech Softball team opened their season under the direction of their new coach, Scott Ialuna on Saturday afternoon at home against Arlington Catholic. Despite a strong game by the Lady Rams offense, Shawsheen fell by a score of 9-5 to their non league rivals. Shawsheen actually went out to a 4-0 lead in this one, led primarily by the efforts of senior captain Katie Stevens of Wilmington, who got the scoring started in the second inning with a two run single. Stevens drove in another run in the third inning on the way to the 4-0 Shawsheen lead, but it was all Arlington Catholic after that, as the Cougars scored nine straight runs before the Lady Rams would tack on a late run.

In addition to Stevens big game, fellow captain Katie Welch, a junior, had a good day as well, going 2-for-3, while Jaimme Hajjar had five putouts at second base, including an unassisted double play.

"I thought we played pretty well," Ialuna said. "We made some mistakes, but we are a young team and that is going to happen. As long as we keep working on those things, we will keep getting better. That is the most important thing."

"The good thing is we have a lot of players who can hit. We have some good depth and we have a good lineup."

Shawsheen will be back in action on Thursday when they host defending CAC champion Whittier Tech, followed by a road matchup with Northeast Metro Tech next Tuesday.

GIRLS LACROSSE

The Shawsheen Girls Lacrosse team also began their first season under the direction of a new head coach, as Alex O'Reilly led them into battle against Salem High on Monday. The Lady Rams responded very well to the new leadership, coming away with a dominant 14-4 victory over their non-league rivals.

Sophomore midfielder Katherine McKenna led the Shawsheen offense with four goals, while fellow midfielder, senior captain Michelle Farragher of Tewksbury added three goals as did junior midfielder Annie Riddle. Hannah Dechiara got things started quickly for Shawsheen, scoring the first goal of the game just 30 seconds into the contest, into the game, followed by a beautiful underhand goal two minutes later by McKenna.

Senior captain Kerrie Malloy of Tewksbury followed with a goal, and when Eliana Purtell put one in, the Lady Rams led 4-0.

Two more goals each by Farragher and McKenna, along with single tallies by Taylor Lynch and Riddle helped Shawsheen to 10-3 lead at the end of the first half.

Single tallies by Farragher and McKenna, along a pair by Riddle accounted for the final score in a game that made O'Reilly very proud of her team in their first time out.

Freshman Goalie Julia Ryan of Wilmington made four saves in the first varsity start of her career to help lead the Lady Rams to the win, while defenders Katie McLaren and Nicole Kopacz, of Tewksbury, were both outstanding in front of her.

"I anticipated mistakes in the first game but the girls really surprised me with their execution of our offensive and defensive sets," O'Reilly said. "We place a lot of focus on discipline and control - disciplined positioning, ball control, controlled movements, etc. and that was a key contributor to our team's success against Salem."

"We need to shift our focus towards cleaning up transitions but I am confident they will be in good shape for Sunday against Haverhill."

As O'Reilly said, the Lady Rams next game will be on Sunday at home against Haverhill, followed by another home game on Tuesday, this time against Assabet Valley.

BOYS LACROSSE

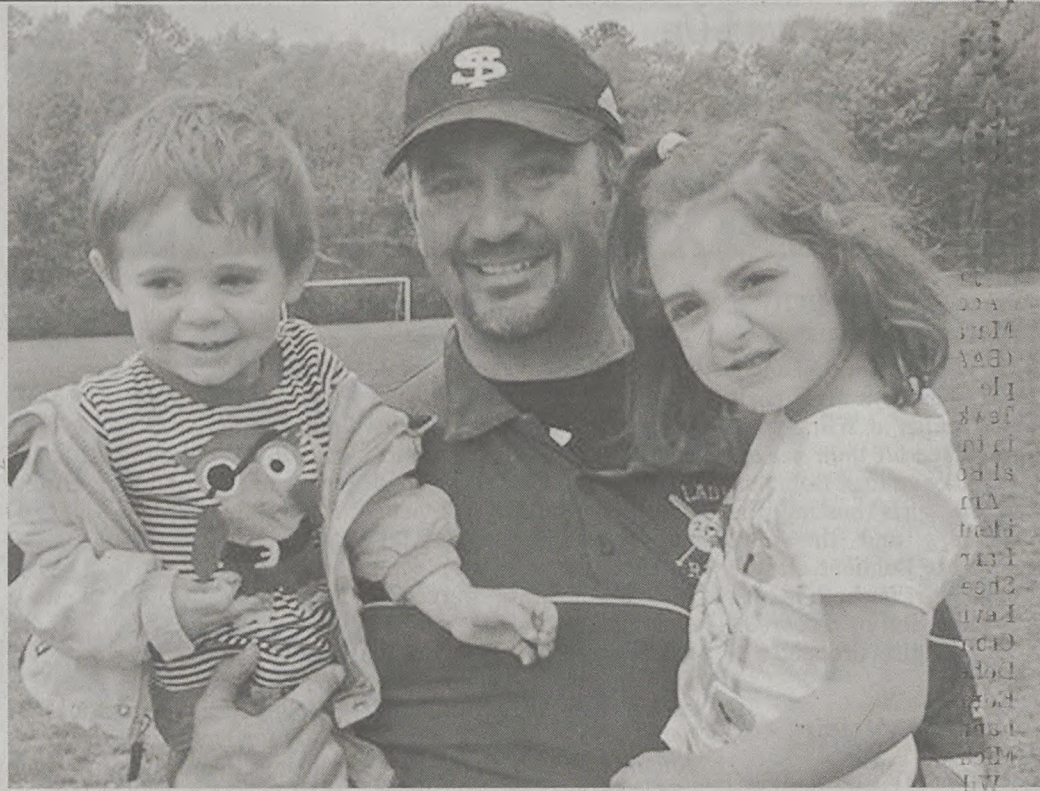

The Shawsheen Boys Lacrosse team started off their season in style last Friday with an 18-17 overtime victory on the road over defending CAC champion Mystic Valley.

Junior Jake Nardone scored the game-winner in overtime to give the Rams the win, his fourth goal of the game, to go along with an assist. Nardone is coming off a sophomore season where he scored 31 goals.

Senior Jack Stone of Tewksbury had seven goals to lead the Shawsheen offense, while also adding an assist. It was a good start for Stone, who scored 70 goals last season as a junior to lead the Rams.

Sophomore Will Bouley had three goals and an assist for the Rams, while freshman Owen Sullivan had two goals and an assist and Jay Colletti chipped in with two goals.

The Rams will be back in action on Friday when they host Nashoba Tech, followed by another home game the next day when they host Salem, New Hampshire.

Assistant Coach Scott Ialuna moves up

Familiar face takes on the reigns of softball program

By MIKE IPPOLITO

sports@yourtowncrier.com
BILLERICA -- For the past 13 seasons, the Shawsheen Tech Softball team has been led by the steady and expert hand of coach Maureen Buckley, who led the Lady Rams to nine league titles over that span, including seven in a row at one point from 2007-2013.

It was a remarkable run led by a remarkable coach, one that will be very difficult to replace. But when Buckley decided to retire prior to this season, that is just the task the Shawsheen was faced with.

Fortunately for the Rams, they did not have to look very far to find the perfect replacement, as taking over for the legendary Buckley this season will be her long time assistant, Scott Ialuna, who has joined Buckley on the Shawsheen bench since 2003.

Ialuna knows that taking over for a coach with Buckley's resume will not be easy, as the expectations will be very high, but he also knows that having worked with Buckley all these years, he is well prepared to take over the reins.

"Maureen always did such a great job of preparing the team. She did such a great job for so many years, and I can't say enough good things about her," Ialuna said. "Throughout all of her years, our players were always so well prepared for every situation. If I can prepare the girls even half as much as she did I will be doing a great job. That's how good she was."

Ialuna of course is well versed in getting players prepared to play as well, whether it be as Buckley's assistant with the softball team, or with the Shawsheen Football team where he assisted coach Al Costabile from 1999-2009, coaching the Rams running backs and linebackers, helping lead the Rams to back to back appearances in the state vocational bowl games, including a vocational championship in 2008.

Ialuna, a 1990 graduate of Bishop Fenwick High School, where he was the football team's MVP in his senior year while also serving as captain of the baseball team in his senior year, goes back even further than that with Costabile, having joined worked under him at Bishop Fenwick when Costabile was the head coach there.

Ialuna joined Costabile's staff back in 1992 while he was still a sophomore in college, and stayed with him at Fenwick until 1999 when Costabile moved on to Shawsheen and asked Ialuna to join him on his new staff.

Being at Shawsheen eventually led Ialuna to Buckley, who was looking for a new assistant back in 2003, and was fortunate enough to find the perfect candidate in Ialuna, based on the recommendation of Shawsheen's baseball coach at the time, Kevin Bloom.

"Kevin knew I was a baseball guy, because he had coached at Fenwick before coming to Shawsheen, so he mentioned something to Maureen, and he approached me about it," Ialuna said. "I had never coached softball, or coached girls before, so I took some time to consider it, but I love coaching, so I took the job and I was obvious very happy that I did."

The new job was not without its hiccups however, as Ialuna did have to adjust his coaching style a little from the gridiron to the softball field.

"My first week coaching I made three girls cry," Ialuna recalled with a laugh. "I had to readjust a little bit of my style. It was a big adjustment for me coaching girls after having always coached boys. Maureen helped me out quite a bit and really took me under her wing. She gave me some great suggestions and that really helped me."

With the experience he gained under both Costabile and Buckley, Ialuna feel he is well prepared for his first head coaching position.

"I have been really fortunate to have two such great mentors," Ialuna said. "I learned a lot from both of them, and I will be able to use that."

Of course moving from the role of an assistant to that of a head coach will be an adjustment for both Ialuna and his players, but Ialuna is confident that thanks to his players, the transition will be smooth.

Ialuna has been especially grateful for the efforts of Shawsheen captains Lauren Barletta of Tewksbury, Katie Stevens of Wilmington, and Katie Welch.

"The three of them have been just awesome. They have made the transition so much easier for me," Ialuna said. "I see them as being extremely important to the team because the other players will follow them. I could not ask for any better captains. They have been just great so far."

Ialuna is looking forward to working with the entire team as the year goes on, but he warns he will not be taking it easy on the players as he expects to get the best out of them in their quest return to the post season after missing out on the state tournament last season for the first time since 2003.

"When we had our first meeting, a lot of the girls clapped when it was announced that I was the head coach. I told them we will see if they are still clapping in a month," Ialuna joked. "But I am really excited for this season. It is a great opportunity and I am looking forward to it. So far everything has been great."

After finishing in sixth place in the West National Division, the Tewksbury Squirt AA Youth Hockey team hit their stride in the playoffs going 4-0. The team started out defeating their first two opponents with identical 3-0 scores. Those two wins set them up for the finals against the first place team. With a tremendous team effort and ferocious will to win they knocked off the first place team 5-3! With three wins under their belts it was on to the last game to face the American West champions Agawam! With the championship on the line they came through with their best effort of the season defeating Agawam 4-1. The team includes front row from left, PJ Civitese, Matt Tramonte, Connor Daniel, Natalie Martin, Vic Pacheco, CJ Dawson; Back row: Isaac Idarraga, Roland Spengler, Tyler Barnes, Jeremy Wentzell, Derek Nazzaro, Andrew Wynot, Cullen Mangan, Seamus Crowley Coaches Mark Tramonte, Dan Wentzell, Bob Spengler and Vic Pacheco. Lyman, 21 others, gearing up for Monday's Boston Marathon

jamiepote@hotmail.com
According to the Boston Marathon Website (BAA.org), a total of 22 people from Wilmington and Tewksbury will be running in this Monday's 120th annual Boston Marathon.

Among the Tewksbury residents include: Timothy Barry, Nicki Barton-Sheehan, Tim Broadrick, Kevin Cormier, Doreen Cronin, John Derouen, Mike Doherty, Jeff Dufour, Bill Edmonds, Fil Faria, Kim Lannon, Lisa Maciel and Michael Rezeszutek.

Wilmington residents include: Brian Barrett, Dana Calumby, Larry Gamst, Edward Gautreau, Melinda Laconte, Ali Lyman, Thomas Peterson, Marian Sales and Tracy Vanisky.

Last year the Town Crier featured Lyman, a former WHS stand-out runner. This year she is back to run the marathon as part of Tedy's Team, led by former New England Patriots linebacker and stroke survivor, Tedy Bruschi, will be an end to stroke. Lyman is running this year's Marathon in honor of her grandmother, Patricia Gallant, and her friend, Catie.

Stroke has impacted Lyman's life multiple times, including her work as a pharmacist. When she was in middle school, Lyman's grandmother suffered a stroke. Fortunately, her mother, who is a nurse, recognized that she needed help quickly and called 9-1-1. Years later, when Lyman was in high school, her good friend, Catie, suffered a stroke at just 17 years-old.

"Running has gotten me through a lot of tough times," said Lyman through a press release from Tedy's team. "Catie was the one who got me into cross country running, so I will be running this year's marathon for her as well as my grandmother."

Lyman's grandmother passed away this past October, which motivated her to apply to run the Boston Marathon with Tedy's Team.

"My mom's quick thinking helped save my Nana's life and prevent some of the disabling effects that the stroke could have had on her cognitive function and physical abilities," explained Lyman. "As a member of Tedy's Team and a healthcare professional, I want to spread the message that knowledge of what stroke is, how it presents, and how to prevent it, is key."

The Town Crier has also featured Tewksbury resident Jeff Dufour over the years. This Monday will mark his fifth Boston Marathon race. He will once again be running on behalf of the Red Sox Foundation.

As the funding source for the team's philanthropy, the Red Sox Foundation supports a wide variety of non-profits and runs several of its own programs.

The money raised by the 2016 RSF Marathon Team will be directed to the Red Sox Foundation's youth programs, including the Red Sox Scholars Program, which provides tutoring, mentoring, enrichment programs and a college scholarship to academically talented but economically disad-

Pitching and defense will be the key for Wildcats this season the order, but supply their share of innings on the mound.

"Gracia pitched some for us last year and already this year he is bigger and stronger and when Gillis and Woods leave, Gracia will be the one who we will look to lead us on the mound," said Caira. "And Smith we are going to use to close out games for us this year. He did that for his AAU team. He has opened up a lot of eyes this pre-season and he throws hard and he throws strikes. I think the strength of the team is obviously our pitching.

"We have a lot of guys who can throw. Darin MacEachern is a guy who throws strikes and won't walk anyone, and then kids like (Matt) Spurr, (Joe) Kelley, (Chris) Greco, (Justin) Kannally will also see some time."

Besides the pitching, the team's top of the order should also be a tremendous strength. It starts with Smith, who last year as a freshman was named an all-star (along with Gillis) after batting .381 with 16 RBIs and also had 14 stolen bases.

"Graham will be back as our lead-off hitter," said Caira. "He loves to run. He can hit and he did a great job for us last year in that role. He knows it's his job to get on base and he knows that he's the catalyst for the team."

Gracia will bat second and last year as a freshman, he batted .344 from the No. 9 position and will move to the No. 2 slot.

"He's a good bunter, he can hit the ball to the right side and he can do some things that helps us at the top of the order," said Caira.

Seniors Brian Cavanaugh, Gillis and Spurr will bat third, fourth and fifth. Cavanaugh batted .313 last year with 17 RBI, Gillis will be looked upon to drive runners in, much like Hill did last year, and Spurr seems to be the most improved batter to this point.

"He has really changed his swing," said Caira. "He's stronger this year but he's shortened up his swing and is making some real solid contact. Last year his swing was long and he would pull his head and shoulders off the ball. Now he stays right in there and he is making some real good contact."

Cavanaugh returns as the team's second baseman, Gracia will be at shortstop, Spurr will be in left field and Smith in center. The other definite spots have gone to senior Joe Kelley in right field and sophomore Chris Greco at third.

"Greco has the softest, quickest hands and looks to be really good defensively at third," said Caira.

Kelley shared time last year in the outfield and will have a much more prominent role this year, while Kannally will also see some time in the outfield.

"He's another defensive whiz," said Caira. "He will be a defensive replacement for us, he'll see time out there when Graham or Spurr pitch. Justin gets a great jump on the ball."

Junior David Woods will also see time in the outfield and brings a lot of power to the plate as well. Gillis will play first when he doesn't pitch, Matt Woods could see time in the outfield when he doesn't pitch.

Also in the mix will be seniors Justin Leger and Nicholas Poli. Leger will see time as an infielder/spare outfielder and Poli will see time at the corner infield spots.

That leaves the final starting spot to two players, battling it out for the catcher's spot, with senior Connor Zaya and junior Robbie Ducharme.

"Neither of those guys are experienced varsity players but they are both very capable players," said Caira. "I like both of them. They both can throw and I think they will both play. I told the kids that playing time for all of the positions will come down to who does it offensively."

"If the season started today, I think Connor would get the start, but that doesn't mean things couldn't change. I see both kids playing a lot. Plus Zaya is a right-handed hitter and Robbie is left-handed so we could play that angle too."

Wilmington was slated to open the season on Tuesday against Woburn but the game was postponed and moved to Thursday the 14th, at Woburn High School, 3:45 pm. After that, the 'Cats will travel to Lexington on Friday, then come home to face Tewksbury at 1 pm on Monday, before facing Belmont on Wednesday at 10:00 am during school vacation week.

Belmont is a league favorite with the return of pitcher Cole Bartels, who beat the Wildcats twice last year. Reading and Wakefield should also be strong.

"I think if we are solid defensively, we don't give up the big innings and make the routine plays, we'll be competitive," said Caira.

Carter Lane will be set up again for the 11th annual Pan-Mass Challenge Wilmington-Andover Kids Bike Ride on Sunday, May 22, 2016. Kids from preschool through grade six can ride their bikes to raise money to help fight cancer. One hundred percent of the proceeds from the ride go to the Dana Farber Cancer Institute and Jimmy Fund. Cowden advances to Division 3 New England Championship Meet

Sports Correspondent

sports@yourtowncrier.com

It was a big week on the athletic fields of area colleges for many of our local athletes, with Wilmington being well represented in on the track as well as on the diamonds and even the lacrosse pitch.

Starting with track and field, it has been a great couple of week for Regis College sophomore thrower Kate Cowden, who qualified for the New England Championships with a throw of 35-04.50 in the shot put event at the Pioneer Invitational hosted by Smith College on Saturday, placing third overall in the event. Cowden also placed second in the discus with a throw of 105-02.

As great as she was on Saturday, Cowden may have been even better the week before at the Snowflake Invitational at Tufts University, when she broke her own school record in the discus throw with a distance of 109-07. She followed that up with a sixth place finish in the shot put with a distance of 33-10.25.

Assumption College freshman Jackie Ryan earned a tenth place finish in the 1,500 meters at the Sam Howell and Yellow Jacket Invitational at American International College on Saturday, crossing the line in a time of 5:07.71. It was the second straight strong effort for Ryan, who was even better the week before, when she helped power the Greyhounds to the overall team title at the Jim Sheehan Memorial at Pitchburg State. Ryan finished second in the 5,000 meters in a time of 8:39.22. In baseball action, UMass Amherst senior shortstop Vinny Scifo was 1-for-4 with a double and a run scored in a 7-3 Minutemen loss to St. Bonaventure on Sunday. Scifo is now batting .197 on the season, but is playing some great defense at shortstop with 39 putouts and 55 assists on the season. Assumption College junior pitcher Mike Curtis threw seven strong innings for the Greyhounds, allowing only three hits, while striking out six in a 6-0 Assumption win over Bentley on Friday afternoon. The win improved Curtis to 3-1 on the season and lowered his ERA on the season to 1.80.

Moving to softball, St. Anselm senior second baseman Emily Crannell was 1-for-2 for the Hawks in a 4-1 win over Merrimack on Saturday. Crannell is now batting .227 on the season with three RBI's and seven runs scored.

Finally in lacrosse, Daniel Webster junior midfielder Matt Capozzi had ten ground ball pickups and won 18 of 23 face-offs in a 13-7 loss to Mitchell College on Saturday. Capozzi now has 31 ground ball pickups on the season, which is good for third on the team, and is also 105-for-177 on face-offs on the season.

Regis College freshman midfielder Zach Leighton has played in seven of eleven games for the Pride in his first collegiate season. Most recently he helped the Pride to consecutive wins last week against Mass. Maritime (11-7) and Becker (8-3). The Pride are now 8-3 on the season.

Rivier University freshman midfielder Chris Pennie has played in eight of eleven games for the Raiders this season. In his first year at the college level Pennies has already become one of the key face-off men for the Raiders, taking 83 face-offs on the season, second most on the team.

Rivier freshman attack Rob Fullerton scored the first goal of his collegiate career on Saturday in a 16-7 win over Johnson & Wales. Fullerton has played in four games this season for the Raiders.

Rivier junior attack Jane Farrell scored a goal to help the Raiders to 16-5 win over Albertus Magnus on Sunday afternoon. It was the sixth goal of the season for the Farrell, who has helped the Raiders to a 7-5 record on the season.

ROAD RACES

It was a quiet week for local runners. But at the Merrimack River Trail Race in Andover, three Wilmington residents completed the event including Miroslav Tashev (58th, 1:15.28), John Gorvin (162nd, 1:40.54) and Kevin Yetman (174th, 1:46.15). Then at the Firefighter James Rice Memorial 5K race in Peabody, the lone local to participate was Wilmington's Jennifer Silva, who came across 214th with a time of 33:24.

This past week the Boston Globe and Boston Herald All-Scholastic teams were announced from this past winter season and Wilmington High Girls Indoor Track Coach Brian Schell was named the Globe's Division 4 Coach of the Year after guiding the Wildcats to a 5-0 record and the program's first ever league championship.

Turning to spring sports, Wilmington High senior Jackson Gillis has also been named to the Herald's Pre-Season Dream Team in Baseball. The left-hander has already signed on to pitch at Vanderbilt University.

Finally this past week, Athletic Directors across the state voted 161-105 in favor of keeping the current High School Football playoff format.

PRO BASEBALL

The two local baseball pitchers, Scott Oberg and Stephen Peterson, have both appeared in games this past week. Oberg, a member of the Triple-A Albuquerque Isotopes, struggled in his first two outings giving up four earned runs in two innings including two walks and striking out one.

Peterson, a member of the Double-A Biloxi Shuckers, has also appeared in two games, throwing 1.1 innings of scoreless ball including giving up two hits and one walk, while striking out one.

WHS COACHING POSITIONS

On Tuesday morning, it was announced on the Wilmington Public Schools website that WHS was looking for 20 coaches to fulfill its winter sports teams. However, this is standard procedure where coaches deal on one-year contracts and the positions get posted every year. Athletic Director Ed Harrison was asked about the post, and said it's been the same as always, with one exception.

"Each season all coaching positions are posted internally and all coaches re-apply. This year we decided to also post the positions on School Spring. The process will be a collaborative one where Ms. Peters, Mr. Alberts and myself will make hiring recommendations to the Superintendent."

Vanisky moving in on big challenge

bouncing around the state for a little while, they finally came to settle in Wilmington.

The family struck down solid roots with Edward's new practice, but Tracy felt displaced. After having loved living in Vermont, she knew she needed to take active steps to make this more permanent home as comfortable as her previous locales.

It was then that she discovered the Shamrock Running Club. "That's what got me heavily into running. It was always something I wanted to do but I never had the chance because I was pregnant, or living in Germany for a while, or something else."

Running with this group allowed Vanisky to feel like a part of the community, and she greatly treasured the time she spent bonding with strangers over this shared passion and the joy of activity.

"Oh God, they're awesome," Vanisky said. "The running club is like a little subculture. We're all different, we all have different jobs and different things going on in our lives. This is the only thing we really have in common. I find it really heartwarming that I was able to meet these people that I never would have met unless we all had this common love of running."

The more time she spent with the club, and the more she spoke with them, the more it became clear that the endgame for so many runners was the Boston Marathon. Hearing about, and eventually training for, the marathon only strengthened Vanisky's growing attachment to the city and state.

"When I joined the running group I started meeting all these wonderful people and they made it clear that Boston is it, the crème de la crème," she said. "I ended up falling in love with Boston, Massachusetts, and running."

With three young children (her eldest is only six), Vanisky is limited in terms of training time. She developed a routine of a three-day training runs, with Tuesday devoted to speed, Thursday devoted to hills, and Saturday devoted to a long run. At her peak, Vanisky estimates that she was racking up 45 miles a week. Due to her children's age, Vanisky would get up at 4:45 a.m. every morning to begin training.

She put those efforts to use in her first ever marathon, the 24 Hour Ultra Around the Lake Marathon. Vanisky did so well, she qualified for the Boston Marathon and is now excited to take to the streets.

"I love living here now and I love the people," Vanisky said. "I'm excited for my family to see me and I am excited to experience it."

But there is a bittersweet tinge to this achievement. As much as Vanisky loves the run, and as hard as she has worked to earn her spot in the marathon, the efforts have had a debilitating effect on her health. After becoming ill following her first marathon, her doctor told Vanisky in no uncertain terms that she needed to stop running.

The very thing that had brought her so much connection and happiness was now harming her.

Vanisky continued to run and train, occasionally feeling the effects of that same illness. She has set the upcoming marathon as her last. After only recently discovering her skill and aptitude for this sport, Vanisky is now forced to leave it behind.

But she refuses to be bitter about this setback and is instead focused on making the upcoming marathon an experience to remember.

"It was something I had to do," she said. "People train their whole lives for this and I qualified. I had to do it."

Forte Memorial 5K, April 24

On April 24, 2016 at 11am, We're One Wilmington (WOW) will host its sixth annual 5K Run for Wilmington / Kim Forte walk, featuring a fun-filled morning of entertainment, friendly competition and community spirit. We will gather at the Wilmington Town Common to celebrate both the life of Kim Forte and the amazing spirit of this very special town. Our course is fast and flat and is ideal for all ages and athletic abilities. Last year's event attracted over 500 runners, walkers and spectators from Wilmington and surrounding towns.

Registration is now open. Don't miss out on the fun... it's a wonderful way to kick off spring! Registration can be completed online or through our mail-in registration form. Both can be found at <http://www.onewilmington.org/road-race/registration/>.

Proceeds from the road race will be used, in part, to fund the WOW scholarship program - which has awarded ~$30,000 to deserving Wilmington students over the past 6 years. For the third year, WOW will also donate $3 per youth and $5 per adult registration back to local non-profit organizations selected by registered participants. Since we've started this tradition, our participants have raised over $6,000 for 50 deserving organizations.

WOW is actively seeking sponsors for this event. Opportunities run the gamut and no level of sponsorship is too small. It is largely through the generosity of our sponsors that we are able to fund our many charitable initiatives. Sponsorship levels and benefits can be found on our web site at: <http://www.onewilmington.org/road-race/sponsorship/>.

We invite you to visit www.onewilmington.org to learn more about We're One Wilmington and the 6th Annual 5K Run for Wilmington / Kim Forte Walk.

Look in future editions of the Town Crier for all of the coverage of this annual terrific event.

Little League Parade, Saturday

Wilmington Little League will kick off the 2016 season with a Parade of Players and Opening Day Ceremonies on Saturday April 16th, when the Little League Parade steps off from the Town Common area at 9:30 am.

The on-field ceremonies will take place at Rotary Park and will include introductions of special guests, ceremonial first pitch by two Wilmington Veterans plus the singing of the National Anthem by WHS student Kelly Dankese. The Lowell Spinners mascot Canagator will also be on hand. All parade participants will receive a hot dog and drink provided with the assistance of the Wilmington Kiwanis Club.

This year over 600 local players will participate in baseball and softball games within Wilmington Little League's different divisions. More than 130 managers, coaches and parents will volunteer their time supporting our program.

Following the ceremonies, the season will get under way when the White Sox take on the Yankees in Little League Major Division action.
